PICKLE INDUSTRY STARTED.

Contracts for Acreage now Being Made with Farmers.

During the past week A. W. Moody of Green Bay, who represents Alart & McGuire, has been in the city looking over the ground and getting matters in readiness for the season's planting and assisting in the making of contracts for acreage. The work up to date has progressed favorably and there is no doubt in the minds of those interested that before planting time comes the necessary contracts will have been closed to make the scheme a success.

During the past few weeks the business men of the city have guaranteed enough money to insure the erection of a salting station this point, and now the only thing that remains to be done is for the farmers in this vicinity to make the necessary contracts. Mr. Moody states that at least 150 acres should be contracted for in order to make a success of the enterprise, but that the company could handle the cucumbers from 300 acres with profit.

Wherever the raising of cucumbers has been thoroughly tried by farmers it has proven a paying venture. It has peculiarities that especially recommend it above many crops that the farmers hereabouts are attempting to make a profit out of every year. One of the advantages is the fact that the company in making its contracts in the spring tells just what price will be paid for the product upon delivery, so that the only factor that has any bearing on the income is the size of the crop. Most crops raised are subject to the fluctuations of the market, so that almost invariably when the prices are high the crop is short, and when there is a good crop so that the farmer might reap a benefit, then the prices are so low that it is hardly worth while to draw the product to market.

One of the things that speaks very favorably for the raising of cucumbers is the fact that those who made a trial of the matter last year have been the first to come and ask for contracts this season, and last year was a very unfavorable season. About four thousand bushels were shipped from this place last season, this being the result of the experiments.

F. P. Daly, who has been largely instrumental in securing the location of the salting station at this place, is making the contracts with the farmers. It would be well for farmers who wish to make contracts to signify their intentions as early as possible so that the company may be able to figure on what they will have to prepare for at this point.

Papermakers Organize.

On Sunday, April 4th, the paper-makers of this vicinity met at Natwick's hall and perfected an organization. The organization here will be known as The Wisconsin River Valley Lodge No. 27, Brotherhood of Papermakers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Frank Barrett.
Vice President—Fred Neber.
Recording Secretary—Sheridan Jessemere.
Financial Secretary—John Alpine.
Treasurer—Louis Schuh.
The lodge starts out with thirty-five charter members.

A General Invitation.

The following communication was received by the editor on Thursday. No explanations are necessary as it fully explains itself.

"Some gentleman told a certain party that the ward school on the west side is going to the devil. The janitor of the ward school invites some of the school board to come and visit and see which way it is moving."

'Tis Easy To Feel Good.

Countless thousands have found a blessing to the body in Dr. King's New Life pills, which positively cure constipation, sick headache, dizziness, jaundice, malaria, fever and ague and all liver and stomach troubles. Purely vegetable; never gripe or weaken. Only 25c at Johnson & Hill Co. and John P. Daly's drug store.

Elks Organize.

On Sunday afternoon the gentlemen who had signified their willingness to become members of the lodge of Elks at this place met at the K. P. hall and effected an organization.

The meeting was called to order by W. H. Carey, who has had the organization under his supervision, he being a member of the order. The following officers were elected:

Exalted Ruler—W. J. Conway.
Esteemed Leading Knight—A. G. Miller.
Esteemed Loyal Knight—Otto Roenius.
Esteemed Lecturing Knight—Dr. J. C. Conniff.
Secretary—John Jaeger.
Treasurer—L. P. Witter.
Tyler—Sam Church.
Trustees—E. Oberbeck, W. H. Carey and Dr. O. T. Hungen.
Esquire—Dr. A. L. Ridgman.
Chaplain—L. M. Schlatterer.

The date for installation and initiation of members was set for Wednesday, April 24th, and the work will be done under the supervision of a team from Stevens Point. Visiting members are expected from Marshfield, Stevens Point and Wausau and it is expected that there will be an attendance of about one hundred at the banquet that occurs that evening.

A committee consisting of Dr. Chas. Pomainville, Ed. Whitney, Gay Nash, Oscar Hathaway and Alex Muir was appointed to make arrangements for entertaining the visitors and getting the spread in readiness. The Foresters hall has been engaged for the latter purpose.

Preparations are now in progress for the banquet and something out of the ordinary is looked for.

NEW COUNCIL MEETS.

Officers Appointed and other Business Transacted.

The new council met in regular session on Tuesday evening with Mayor Wheeler in the chair.

The following appointments were made for the ensuing year:

City clerk—M. G. Gordon.
City attorney—B. R. Goggins.
City engineer—E. I. Phillo.
City physician—Dr. F. Pomainville.
Chief of Police—John Garthie.
Day police—James Gibson.
Night police, east side—John Raath.
Night police, west side—Herbert Kellogg.

Other routine business was disposed of, but nothing out of the ordinary was taken up.

Severely Bruised.

Joseph Duff met with an accident on Saturday while employed in unloading logs at the mill of the Grand Rapids Lumber Company which might have resulted in a much more serious manner.

He had loosened the fastenings on a car of logs and when they started to roll he stepped back to avoid being struck. In the meantime one of the other workmen had loosened the fastenings on the next car and when Mr. Duff stepped back he was right along side the other car. As the logs started from the first car the jar started those on the second one and one of the logs struck him on the shoulder and he was thrown down and into the pond, several logs tumbling over and about him. The result was that his spine was injured somewhat and he was badly bruised about the shoulder, although no bones were broken. Mr. Duff has since been confined to his home by his bruises, but it is not anticipated that he will suffer any permanent injury.

Farmers' Institute for June.

University of Wisconsin, MADISON, Wis., April 10, 1901.

We are planning to hold Summer Institutes in Northern Wisconsin in June, at points in the state that are too far north to make winter meetings advisable.

If your town has a hall that can be furnished free, in which to hold a one day meeting, and your farmers and business men wish an institute to be held at your town sometime during June, write to this office for a blank petition.

Only ten or twelve of these meetings can be held and we already have a number of petitions on file. If you wish a meeting for your town, write for blank petition at once, as the earliest applications will receive the most favorable consideration.

School Commissioners Meet.

On Saturday evening the new school commissioners met and organized. Frank Garrison, who has held office during the past year, resigned and Ernest Oberbeck was elected to take his place. Geo. Coriveau, one of the newly elected commissioners, refused to qualify, and L. M. Nash was elected to fill the vacancy caused by this action.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were H. Rabin, president, and L. M. Nash, treasurer. No other business of much importance was transacted at the meeting and an adjournment was taken until Tuesday evening the 23rd instant.

WENT FOR WATERWORKS.

A Good Majority for the Improvement in Spite of a Small Vote.

On Friday last the people of Grand Rapids voted on the waterworks question and then when the vote was counted it was found that those desiring the improvement out-numbered the others two to one, the vote being 450 for and 204 against. Following is the vote by wards:

	For	Against
First ward.....	67	6
Second ward.....	94	10
Third ward.....	80	1
Fourth ward.....	105	3
Fifth ward.....	15	57
Sixth ward.....	39	63
Seventh ward.....	31	37
Eighth ward.....	15	27
Totals.....	450	204

It will be seen by the figures that the east side went for the measure in every ward while on the west side the vote was as universally against it. From this it would be inferred that the west side was pretty generally of the belief that waterworks were not a desirable thing or a necessity.

There may be arguments against the establishment of a waterworks system, and some of the arguments may be good ones. However, both sides do need waterworks, the east side because it has no adequate fire protection and the waterworks system would furnish it. The west side, because the drinking water is unfit for use and the waterworks would supply the deficiency.

There are people who claim they would rather drink river water than that from a spring. This may be so, there is no accounting for tastes. With the knowledge that sewers empty into the Wisconsin river at all the large cities along the stream these people with the depraved tastes should try to restrain themselves. The sewage and effluvia may be largely diluted and the water to a certain extent purified by oxidation and precipitation before it reaches this city, but still there is enough foreign matter held in suspension to give it a seal brown tint and to cause it to leave a similar taste in the mouth of the consumer, and any man who has kept track of events throughout the country knows that many diseases which exist in an up-river town only in isolated cases often make their appearance further down the stream where the water is used for drinking purposes in the form of a deadly epidemic, thereby causing much loss of life as well as financial embarrassment. The above are facts, and not idle fancies, and now that the chance is at hand to remedy the evil the people should be congratulated that they have improved the opportunity to do so.

May go by Boat.

Marshfield News: At Tuesday evening's meeting of the Elks lodge Dr. H. A. Lathrop, E. L. Reese and T. P. Lyons were appointed a committee on ways and means of attending the Milwaukee carnival in July. A meeting of the several Central Wisconsin lodges will be held in Grand Rapids next Wednesday, at which time the local committee will submit a proposition to have Wausau, Stevens Point, Grand Rapids, Eau Claire and Marshfield lodges unite on an excursion to the Green City via Green Bay and Lake Michigan, taking with them the Second Regiment band which will be entered for the first prize in the country band contest. The plan is to charter a steamer at Green Bay capable of accommodating at least 150 persons and upon reaching Milwaukee anchor in the heart of the city where the boat may be used as headquarters for the party during their stay. Many lodges are adopting suits of distinctive colors for the occasion and this may also be done by the Central Wisconsin contingent.

Travel Class Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Lipke entertained the members of the Travel class and their husbands on Wednesday evening and a very pleasant time was spent, about twenty-five being present.

Among the entertaining features of the evening was a series of 50 lantern slides illustrative of the city of Paris and a lecture on the subject, this part of the entertainment being under the management of F. MacKinnon.

Another feature was a guessing game, the answers to which being names of prominent men of the present day. This occasioned a great deal of fun and amusement. Refreshments were served in the later part of the evening and the guests are loud in their praise of Mr. and Mrs. Lipke as entertainers.

A woman is sick—some disease peculiar to her sex is developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds back something, loses her head, becomes flustered, forgets what she wants to say, and finally tells him what she ought to have told, and this completely satisfies the doctor.

Is it a wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to

Mrs. Ella Rice, Chelsea, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled and indammation of the womb. I suffered very much with pains, headache, backache, and was not able to do anything but sit up. I endured no one knows but those who have suffered as I have. I hardly drag myself across the floor. I doctored with the physician for three months and grew worse instead of better. My friends wished me to write to you, but I had no faith in cures. At last I became so bad that I concluded to ask you to send me an answer at once advising me to take your Vegetable Compound and I did so. Before I had taken two bottles I felt better, and after I had taken five bottles there was no happier woman on earth, for I was cured. I know that your Vegetable Compound cured me, and I advise every woman who suffers as I did to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Believe me always grateful for the recovery of my health."—MRS. ELLA RICE, Chelsea, Wis.

THE JEWELLED TALISMAN

PURITAN AND CAVALIER

BY MRS. CAROLINE ORNE

"Where you found where the would-be murderer left you?"

"I was beset by more than one, and after lying like one dead for hours life but not reason returned. The master of the house where I now am, who was preparing to start on a journey, had risen earlier than usual, and the light which gleamed from the door, which he opened to see what the weather was, must have attracted my attention, for I succeeded in reaching the doorstep, where I fell. He, with the assistance of a servant, carried me into the house. A Jew surgeon was procured, who dressed the wound on my forehead, and another, which he considered more dangerous, in my side. When it became known to them that their neighbor who lived opposite was charged with the crime of murder, and that I must be the person supposed to be murdered, they determined for a while to keep silent on the subject, while, if possible, they increased their efforts for my recovery. This is the second day of the trial, I understand?"

"It is."

"I wish to give in my testimony."

"Are you able? Can you endure the necessary excitement and fatigue?"

"My physician has given his consent."

Harleigh was the first witness who was called that afternoon. When he had finished the little he had to say he left the room by a private door, just back of the witness box. Elliston in the meantime had been called to the stand. He had little to add to what Harleigh had said, and when he had withdrawn, a chair was placed where he had stood. Before the spectators had time to express to each other the curiosity and surprise occasioned by this proceeding, Harleigh entered by the same door he went out at with a man leaning on his arm.

The man seemed weak and agitated, and was very pale, an appearance which was heightened by the almost crimson hue of a newly cleaved wound on his forehead. At sight of him Falkland started, and a sudden flush overspread his countenance. For a few moments he found it impossible to control his agitation, and his first impulse was to attempt, while the attention of those present was drawn towards Redding, to leave the court house.

"It will look as if I were guilty," he said to himself, after a moment's reflection, and the half-formed intention was therefore abandoned.

Redding having been sworn, said that on the evening of his supposed murder, Gilbert Falkland sent him to Jeduthun, the Jew's, for the purpose of paying one hundred pounds, for which the Jew held Falkland's bond.

"As I was passing a little blind court adjoining the Jew's buildings," he went on to say, "I heard some one say, in a low voice, 'That must be our man, Corke.' This somewhat startled me, as I thought he might mean me. I quickened my steps, and the next minute I reached the shop door. To my dismay, I found that it was locked. I gave several loud raps, when I was seized by the arm and pulled off the steps. I struggled to free myself, and at the same time cried loudly for help, for I found that I had more than one to contend with. From that time, for more than two weeks, all was a blank to me, except that at one time I have a dim recollection of feeling cold and weak, and of going towards something which I took to be the fire on the hearth of my master's lodgings."

This statement, instead of being invalidated by a strict cross-examination of the witness, and by the testimony of the different members of the family who had attended towards him the part of the good Samaritan, was more fully substantiated, and rendered more consistent.

As Redding steadily persisted in denying that he entered the shop, or any part of the building, so how Falkland's bond came to be in the place where the Jew admitted he had found it, remained a mystery still to be explained. "Till it could be, the counsel for the prosecution objected to the release of the prisoner. The assassins, he maintained, might have been employed by him for the purpose of obtaining it. The greed of gain, supposed to be common to his race, justified him in making this assertion.

At this crisis, an honest-looking yeoman, who had entered the court room just as the question of the bond was brought up, and whom Harleigh recognized as Hendrick Dykes, made his way towards the counsel's benches, and requested to be sworn as a witness.

"I think," said he, when his request had been complied with, "that what I have to say may throw some light on the point in question. Late in the evening of the seventeenth day of last month, I started from home with a load of country produce, and arrived in the city before daybreak. I went to the stable where I commonly go, and waking the hostler, had my horses taken care of. As there wasn't room for my wagon under cover, I didn't like to leave it, so I crept under the straw in the back part of the wagon, close to a couple of barrels, and was beginning to be a little drowsy when I heard voices close by. I was wide awake in an instant, for I didn't know but some thieves had strolled that way, and would be helping themselves to some of my cheese. I kept still as a mouse, and listened to what they said.

"It was lucky," said one of them, "that he got the bond, when he went to the old Jew's yesterday morning."

"Why so?" said another voice.

"Don't you see that it will be proof right to the point?" said he who had first spoken.

"Yes, I see now, and I rather think that if Jeduthun had known how it was going to turn out, he would have let it be where it was, instead of pickin' it up," said the other.

"Was the name of the person mentioned, who was referred to, as obtaining possession of the bond?" was here asked by the counsel for the defense.

Harleigh and Elliston both looked at Falkland when this question was asked, and saw that a look of intense agony swept over his face. The delay was not more than half a minute's duration, but to Falkland, the horror crowded into that half minute was enough to embitter a lifetime.

When the answer of Hendrick came clear and distinct, "It was not," it was well for Falkland that he stood wedged in, among so dense a crowd, as otherwise, so great and sudden was the revelation of his feelings, that he must have fallen.

"Did they call each other by name?" was the next question which was asked of Hendrick.

"I heard one of them call the other by name," was his answer.

"Do you remember what it was?"

"Yes; it was Skellum."

Corke and his two guilty confederates were conveyed from the court house to Newgate, their employer remaining still unsuspected; while the Jew, conducted to his own home by Harleigh and Elliston, found Abi, Alice and Mrs. Solvyn to welcome him. Aseneth and Mizar were also there, the same testimony which proved their master's innocence having shown them to be guiltless.

Two days later Falkland visited Corke in his cell.

"Are you going to help me out of this?" asked the condemned man.

"You are beside yourself. You don't know what you are saying," was the retort.

"I shall know when I proclaim to the world what a double-dyed villain Gil Falkland is."

"You'll think better of what you say when your rage has had time to cool."

"You'll find yourself mistaken. As surely as you live, the world shall know it."

"There is one way to prevent it," and as he spoke he drew forth a poniard which had been concealed about his person.

The quick eye of Corke caught the gleam of the shining steel aimed at his breast, in season to wrench it from his hand. The next moment Falkland lay at his feet with the poniard sheathed in his heart.

The deep silence of his cell for ten or fifteen minutes remained unbroken, except that now and then a nervous motion of the prisoner caused a faint clasp of his iron fetters. Then the door was unlocked and held a little ajar.

"Come," said the turnkey, "the time is up on you to stay. But how is this, Corke?" he added, seeing Falkland extended on the floor. "Has your friend gone to sleep?"

"Yes, and won't wake very soon, I'm thinking."

"Who did this?"

"The deed lies between him and me, I suppose," said Corke, suddenly.

CHAPTER XXI.

In deference to the wishes of Mrs. Elliston, the marriage of Clarence Harleigh and Alice Dale was to take place at her house, and the ceremony was to be performed in the plain, simple manner suited to the religious faith of the sect to which she belonged.

The guests were assembled, and Abi had just finished twining the bridal wreath, with the rich brown tresses of Alice, when there came several quick, sharp raps at the door.

"For the bride," said some one who stood in the shade of the portico, and who quickly turned away after handing something to the servant who had opened the door.

"Here is something for the bride," said he to Mrs. Elliston, who ordered it to be sent to Alice.

Abi undid the cord of blue and white floss bound round it, and removed the envelope.

"How beautiful!" she exclaimed, as a box of pure white ivory, delicately and elaborately carved, was disclosed to view. They bent over it, and read what was written on the slip of paper glued to the cover of the box.

"(Sweetest to the sweet), it says," said Abi. "The writer must be some one who knows you. Shall I remove the cover?"

"Yes. We must see what it is."

"A gift delicate and lovely as the casel which contains it."

"See," said Alice, "the morning dew is still sparkling in the heart of these half-blown roses."

"They are just what are needed," said Abi; "for though Mrs. Elliston requested you to wear no jewelry, she cannot object to your wearing these."

They were soon arranged amid the snowy folds of the lace kerchief worn by Alice, which was of a texture so fine and delicate as to make it of a price many times greater than its weight in gold. Word had already been sent them that all was ready.

The Jew, who had been hidden to the wedding, was standing in the doorway of the room contiguous to that where the ceremony was to be performed, and where Harleigh, Elliston and others were awaiting the bride.

"Whence comes this sickening and deadly odor?" exclaimed the Jew, as he stepped back for Alice and Abi to enter.

"What is it?" said Harleigh, coming quickly forward.

"There is a subtle and deadly poison somewhere near," replied the Jew.

"It is nothing but the perfume of these roses," said Abi.

"Where? What roses?" he asked.

"These," and she pointed to those worn by Alice.

"They are poisoned," said he, as he tore them from the bosom of the frightened bride.

Harleigh snatched them from his hand,

and in the almost frantic terror of the moment, threw them from a window.

"How is it, Alice?" said he. "Speak and tell me they haven't had time to do you harm."

"I'm a little faint," she replied, attempting to smile.

"Look!" said Edward Elliston, aside to the Jew. "Her lips are as white as snow."

"Is there nothing which can save her?" exclaimed Harleigh, as he took her in his arms and bore her to a couch.

"I know of an antidote; I have it at home, but it cannot be obtained in time. I fear the hand of death is already upon her," said the Jew.

"If you mean the perfume such as you gave me," said Abi, "I have some here."

And she drew a little gold box from her pocket, in shape resembling the vinaigrette in use at the present day.

"That is it. Take courage. It is still more subtle than the poison, and will soon pervade the whole system," and he held the pleasant though pungent perfume so that Alice could inhale it.

"There was a minute of harassing doubt, scarcely relieved by hope. Then her color began to return, and the sluggish, almost frozen pulse to resume its natural, healthful beat. A few moments more and all danger was past. The Jew handed the perfume to Abi.

"Make use of it," said he. "You, too, have been endangered."

They did not see, during all this time, a pale, haggard face pressed against one of the window panes, nor the cold, glittering eyes which were watching them. Even if they had, they would not, in their wild terror and intense excitement, have given the circumstance a single thought.

It was not till they knew that the terrible danger was past that some one asked what had become of the poisoned flowers. No one knew, Harleigh too much agitated to know what he did when he threw them from the window, had no recollection of the circumstance. The servant who had received a fatal gift, entering the room as the inquiries were being made, said that he saw Mr. Harleigh throw them from the window.

"They mustn't remain there," said the Jew. "If they do, more than one life may be lost by means of them."

Edward Elliston, having called for a lantern, went in search of them. As he held the light close to the ground its rays fell on some object which, it appeared to him, was a human form, lying under the window next to the one where he was searching for the flowers. Approaching it, he found it was a woman. He called for help, and when he had assisted to carry her into the house, Harleigh and Alice saw that it was Mildred Davies.

"She appears to be dead," said Harleigh. "Is it possible that she found the poisoned flowers?"

"There was no need that she should find them to produce the effect you see," remarked the Jew. "I can perceive that the same deadly effluvia emanates from the flowers entangled in such a manner with the breast-knot she wears, as to make it seem probable that she made an effort to tear them thence, as I detected in these."

In a short time a slight convulsive movement was perceptible, causing a mantle she had on to slip aside, which would have fallen to the floor had not a corner of it been wound round her hand. Harleigh, who stood near, removed the mantle, when it was seen that her hand was closed over the flowers which had been thrown from the window, with so firm and rigid a grasp as to crush them. An attempt to remove them awakened her to a degree of consciousness.

"No—no," she murmured. "They are flowers for the bride. I lost them somehow, but I shall keep them safe now, till I can give them into the bride's own hand."

"Cut it be that it was she who sent the flowers?" said Edward Elliston.

"It must have been," replied Harleigh. She recognized his voice.

"Clarence Harleigh," said she, "there was one who stood between you and me, but she is out of the way now. Don't try to find how it came about. It will never come to light. Stay—don't go yet. In a minute I'll be ready to go with you."

As she spoke, with a sudden effort she raised herself from her recumbent posture, threw out her arms in a wild, impassioned manner, as if she wished to prevent some one's departure, fell back and immediately expired.

After what had taken place, all thoughts of the intended wedding were for that evening abandoned. When, in a week afterward, the guests re-assembled, it was not alone to witness the bridal of Harleigh and Alice, for ere they returned to their own homes, Edward Elliston and Abi Hushion had likewise received the nuptial benediction.

A few months from this time, Harleigh and his youthful bride visited the home of her childhood. It was the evening after their arrival, and the air, keen and frosty without, caused the overcast snow to sparkle in the beams of the full moon, as it strewn with thousands of diamonds, was tempered within the ample parlor of the Walworth farm house, to a kind of festive mellowness not easy to describe.

It seemed to Alice that elfin fingers must have been busy with her former guardian's face—here smoothing away some stern and rigid line—and there, slightly giving it a little dash of sunshine. It was certain that he had seldom, or never before, so fully given himself up to that social enjoyment which develops the better and the more kindly feelings of our nature, since, by a mistake common to the enthusiasts of his time, he had, in his own mind, confounded even the pure and innocent pleasures of the home circle with those which he considered vain and sinful. But an iceberg cannot resist the constant and genial influences of the sun, and his artificial coldness and austerity had gradually yielded to the gentle and benign influences of her who presided over his household.

"You don't know who Aunt Jane is, do you?" said Ella, who, as in former days, had taken a seat by the side of Alice.

"No, dear," she replied. "Who is she?"

"Aunt Gabriel's wife. You know he taught my teachers and me to call him uncle."

"And we like to, now," said Benjamin.

"He don't seem so strange as he used to."

"Gabriel," said Mrs. Walworth, "has been married to the good-natured, laughing Jane Lovering more than a year, and being strong and healthy, she makes nothing of spinning and weaving the fleeces of his flock," which he once, on a certain occasion, alluded to, and of managing a large dairy to his entire satisfaction."

"I guess Aunt Jane's face fits his eye," said Benjamin, "for it is as big and as round as the full moon."

"My son," said his father, removing his, though a smile could be seen lurking in his eye, "you mustn't suffer yourself to exaggerate when you make comparisons."

"For my part, I think it is nothing but the simple and candid truth," said Silas Watkins, who, hitherto, had been a silent partaker of the social enjoyment, and who continued to think that it ever there was an angel on earth, it was Alice.

(The end.)

HE RUINED THE FEAST.

Story of How One Jackson Got His Discharge.

"I'm not generally reverent, but," said Mrs. Blank, "but willingly yesterday would have I have followed Jackson, my waiterman, to the grave."

"Jackson is a good enough man, generally, preternaturally grave, but polite and agile to a degree. I gave him a good recommendation when I sent him away this morning."

"Why did I send him away? Well, that's the story. Yesterday Mr. Blank brought two men friends home to lunch with him. I had never seen either of them before, and my pantry was about in the condition of Mother Hubbard's, so, altogether, it was a very serious occasion for me. The cook worked desperately hard, though—she's a good soul, is the cook—and I got out the fruit cake I was saving for Easter and the preserved ginger that's the light of my eyes, and together we fixed up a presentable little feast."

"The piece de resistance of the repast was a dish of creamed turkey, made of the remnants of yesterday's fowl, caked out by being spread upon buttered toast," quotes the Baltimore News. "It looked quite a respectable amount when it was garnished and on the dish, and I cautioned Mr. Blank not to help too lavishly, put my trust in the potato croquettes and lettuce salad and tried to be happy."

"All may yet be well," I murmured to myself, like the hero of a melodrama; but alas! It was not, for the redoubtable Jackson was well to the fore. As soon as I found that he had put on his patent-leather shoes in honor of the company I had forebodings.

"This footwar had once belonged to Mr. Blank, so I knew exactly how slippery it was, but I tried not to care, and to talk of the news of the day in an intelligent manner that would please my husband's school chums."

"The soup course passed off splendidly, though Jackson served it like a juggler tossing plates, and then came the turkey toast. I hope you haven't anticipated my denouement, but Jackson dropped the entire dish of that dainty on the foot of one of my guests. He was ably trying to lift a vegetable dish with one hand while he presented this with the other when the accident occurred."

"Go and get some more of that errand—entree!" thundered my husband, "and send Sarah to remove this horrible debris."

"There ain't no more turkey, sah, and dat's de trufe," said Jackson. Then, "Lemme wipe off your shoe, sah," he said to my guest.

"Of course, we laughed and made merry over the occurrence, and nibbled wafers and cheese and salad and tried to think we were feasting, but I think I know two men who had lunch at a downtown hotel about 3 o'clock that afternoon."

"Jackson? Oh! he's back at his old haunts in a quick-lunch room, and I've no doubt he's succeeding admirably."

The Peach in Babylon.

Nothing is now more universally accepted than that the peach is an improved variety of the almond. The almond has a thin shell around the stone, which splits open and exposes the stone when mature. This outer skin has simply become flesh in the peach, so that in all that gives it its specific character. It seems now clear, from investigation in the history of ancient Babylon, that in their gardens—now nearly four thousand years ago—the peach was cultivated as it is now.

It must have been many years before this that the peach was improved upon the almond, and this fact goes to show the great antiquity of the fruit. Possibly, gardening in some respects, at least so far as it relates to many of our cultivated fruits, was as far advanced six, or perhaps eight or ten thousand years back as it is today. Phœniciaus, as proved by the records, had in their gardens almonds, apricots, bananas, citrons, grapes, olives, peaches, and pomegranates; and even sugarcane was in extensive cultivation.

Tributes to His Genius.

That very wealthy and fortunate violinist, Senor Sarasate, has received during his career as an artist a set of pearls from Queen Victoria, three rings from the German Emperor Wilhelm I., a blue enamel watch from the Emperor Napoleon III., a diamond ring from Dom Pedro, a portrait etched in gold from the Empress Augusta, and a set of diamonds from Alfonso XII., with which and many other valuable offerings he means to enrich his native town.

The Author of Pinocchio.

The late Sir Arthur Sullivan was one of the wealthiest musicians in Europe. From the Savoy operas he drew a princely income, and many of his songs provided him with ever-welcome checks every quarter. As a man of business he had few rivals, and the directors of the Crystal Palace and those of the Savoy Theater knew well his financial ability and his shrewdness.

A little learning is a dangerous thing to be without.

MUST GET OUT OR FIGHT.

Japan Demands that Russia be Ejected from Manchuria.

ULTIMATUM TO CHINA.

Notice Sent to the Emperor, but it is Undoubtedly Meant for St. Petersburg.

London, April 15.—Japan has issued an ultimatum to China that Russia must be ejected from Manchuria, the alternative being that occupation of that province shall become international instead of solely Muscovite.

While directed to Emperor Kwang Hsu, through Li Hung Chang, the ultimatum is undoubtedly meant for St. Petersburg. It is the serving of notice on the Czar that he must abandon Manchuria or fight.

Warning Is Made Clear.

The wording of the ultimatum does fall credit to the reputation of Marquis Li as the diplomat of the Orient. Beneath the flowery language is concealed the mailed fist. First presented as a position, Japan's demand is now couched in words of command.

It is highly significant that Li Hung Chang, ardent special pleader for Russia, should be chosen as the medium for transmitting the ultimatum, and especially so when it is considered that Japan sent her first message to Kwang Hsu through Prince Ching. It is shrewdly conjectured here that Earl Li's first message yesterday, after the receipt of the ultimatum, went to the Czar instead of to his own nominal sovereign.

Japan Urging for a Fight.

That Japan has determined to precipitate a crisis in the far East is now no longer open to doubt. That, while openly acting independently, she has been promised support by other powers, Great Britain among them, is more than probable.

One thing is certain. Russia must now show her hand. She can no longer hide her purposes behind the assertion that she must retain her troops in Manchuria to preserve order and protect her interests. International aid in so doing is now offered her. That she will reject it is a foregone conclusion. Therefore a clash seems inevitable.

Japan's assurance to China that all the nations regard the latter as a "friendly power" is interpreted here as an oriental intimation to Russia that she herself is not considered in that category as far as Japan is concerned.

Li Wants Americans to Remain.

Peking, April 15.—Li Hung Chang has applied to Gen. Chaffee to leave behind when he departs Cape Tientsin and a sufficient number of men to police the Chinese city, as the Chinese earnestly desire their retention fearing that the district will not be well looked after when control is by other foreigners.

An expedition consisting of 5000 French and 3000 French troops will leave Peking tomorrow to drive from the province several thousand Chinese who refuse to obey the order of Li Hung Chang to keep the boundaries already arranged.

Berlin, April 15.—The foreign office authorized the statement that the Chinese indemnities for war expenses, exclusive of the claims of private individuals and pensions, have been fixed as follows: Russia, 20,000,000 marks (about $30,000,000); France, 20,000,000 marks (about $30,000,000); Germany, 20,000,000 marks (about $30,000,000); United States, 100,000,000 marks (about $25,000,000).

France will also present claims for the indemnity of the Italian mission.

New York, April 15.—Reports received here as to the amount of indemnity claimed by the powers from China vary to some extent. Says the London correspondent of the Tribune, "For instance, France is stated by the Mail correspondent in Peking to be asking for $15,000,000, whereas dispatches from Washington put the amount of France's claim at a much less figure. It is considered more than possible in Peking that the powers may jointly agree to reduce their bills pro rata, particularly if China will guarantee certain commercial concessions. One difficulty in the way is that some of the powers will have honestly spent the sums they demand. Russia may be expected to abate her claim, which is considered quite unjustifiable, considering the relative ease and cheapness with which she was able to mobilize. It should not be forgotten that Russia is making separate demands for territorial and commercial privileges, and, besides, the rolling stock and railroad material which she annexed in vast quantities and applied to the local needs of the Manchurian line, must be worth something."

GOVERNMENT TO CONFESS JUDGMENT.

Famous "Hat Trimming" Cases to be Settled by the Payment of $4,000,000.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 15.—The famous "hat trimming" cases, involving $20,000,000, and which since 1884 have been the subject of bitter legal battle between the government and a number of importers, have at last been settled. It is stated on high authority that a compromise has been effected through which the merchants interested will receive about $4,000,000 from the United States treasury in full settlement of the much larger amount they claim to have been forced to pay in excess of legal duties.

The suits which have engaged the attention of some of the best lawyers of the United States were brought by Meyer & Dickinson, Kahn, Adler & Co., John Wamamaker, Henry Tilge and other Philadelphia firms.

These cases will, it is said, be called up in the United States district court today, when judgment will be confessed against the government for the amounts agreed upon. In other suits verdicts will be taken in favor of the defendants.

ROBBED ON TRAIN.

Prosecuting Attorney of Menominee, Wis., Has Pockets Picked of $210.

Menominee, Wis., April 15.—(Special.)—Prosecuting Attorney W. N. Mills was robbed on a North-Western train yesterday while going from Menominee to Slater, Mich. He was in the smoking car sleeping when his pockets were picked of $210 and valuable papers. The robbers escaped from the train.

TEACHER KISSED PUPILS.

Charged with Showing Too Much Affection for Girls.

Calumet, Mich., April 15.—At the meeting of the school board of Calumet yesterday the resignation of E. L. Heath, principal of the Washington school, was presented and accepted to take effect at once. Heath was charged with kissing some of his girl pupils.

Tea-Raising in South Carolina.

During the past few days a company has been organized under the laws of South Carolina for the purpose of making tea on the extensive tract of 100,000 acres which it owns near Charleston, and which it begins the industry this season.

Only about 1000 acres will be put immediately under cultivation, but the remainder will be enriched, ready for planting by next spring. Tea requires an exceedingly rich soil, but there seems to be no reason to doubt that the conditions necessary to produce an excellent quality of the leaf can be supplied by proper attention.

If the experiment proves successful, the company will raise as much as 500,000 pounds of tea per annum, and so confident are they of satisfactory results that they are already negotiating for the purchase of additional lands.—Atlanta Constitution.

English Business Methods.

New Zealand wanted some locomotives, and ordered them in England of an eminent firm. The eminent firm said it would be happy to supply them of a certain pattern and a certain weight. The railway authorities thereupon pointed out that the weight was too much for the bridges, which were already constructed. The eminent firm said that they were sorry, and recommended that the bridges should be reinforced. Such absolute folly on the part of a business firm is almost incredible, yet Mr. Revere vouched for the truth of the story.—Financial Times.

He had been taken violently ill on the train when only a short distance from St. Paul and continued to get worse until he passed away. He was accompanied on the trip by his youngest son. The cause of death was Lagrip and congestion of the lungs.

High School Notes.

An entertainment will be given in the school house next Thursday evening for the benefit of athletics in the high school.

There hasn't been anyone to school yet that showed any signs of the mumps but there are many absences on account of them.

There are but very few girls in the High school that interest themselves in athletics but it will probably be more interesting after Saturday.

This week has been devoted to examinations, which are the last before the finals. Just six weeks more; or thirty days; or 360 hours.

Athletic work is being pushed hard now. The boys who are trying to make the team have been getting out every afternoon after school this week and doing some excellent teaming. Saturday afternoon there will be a field-meet held at the fair grounds. Competition will lie between the Sophomores and Seniors vs. Freshmen and Juniors. There will be all kinds of races: 100 yards, 220, quarter mile, half mile, one mile pole vaulting high jump, broad jump, throwing hammer and discus and putting the shot, bicycle and lastly a base ball game. Everybody come and encourage the boys.

The Juniors have made all arrangements for their swell prom on May 3. Invitations have been given out and a good time promised to those who enjoy the dance.

The Physics class begin the subject of electricity and magnetism Monday, having just finished heat.

During the past week an order has been issued by the St. Paul officials by which a large number of the section men of this division have been discharged and Italians substituted in their place. It seems that the order was sweeping and without exception, the men being fired without cause or reason. The company, so far as can be learned, has not volunteered any reason for the action. It is stated that the people at Wausau have rebelled against the order and as a consequence are losing their business over the Northwestern road, even though the change causes them in some instances considerable inconvenience.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Oshkosh Priest Has Served His Church Twenty-five Years.

HIS SILVER JUBILEE.

Taught in Milwaukee Schools for Several Years and Founded a Catholic Weekly.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—This morning the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Father Adolph Wibbert of St. Vincent's church in this city was celebrated with solemn high mass and a feast which was attended by a large number of Catholic priests of this state and neighboring states.

During his connection with this parish Father Wibbert has discharged obligations and made improvements in the church property amounting to about $125,000. The congregation is composed of about 600 families. The school in connection with the church has a membership of 200 children.

The festivities in honor of the event of Father Wibbert's twenty-fifth anniversary were commenced Sunday when the school children gave an entertainment in the school. In the evening the members of the congregation presented him with a purse. Monday evening Father Wibbert presented him with a purse with fitting ceremony and today the married women of the church did likewise.

Father Wibbert was ordained April 16, 1876, at the age of 32 years, at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., by Bishop Louis M. Fink. He was assigned to Sacred Heart church at Salina, Kas., where he remained for six years. Following this period he was assigned to fourteen parishes, which he served for a total of twenty years. The following nine years he spent in Plattville and since that time he has been pastor of St. Vincent's church in this city.

Father Wibbert was born in Westphalia, Prussia. He completed his classic studies in the old country. In 1863, at the age of 19 years, he came to the United States and was educated in philosophy in Cincinnati and in theology at Montreal.

For three years he taught school in the public schools of Milwaukee and for two years was an instructor in Markham's (now Milwaukee) academy.

During his connection with the academy he founded the Columbian, a Catholic weekly, which is still in existence. It was the first German Catholic periodical in Milwaukee. This was in the early '70s. Shortly afterwards he was ordained a priest.

BATTLE FLAGS ARE NOT REMOVED.

Bad Rainstorm Forces Gov. La Follette to Postpone the Exercises Until May 21.

Madison, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Rain, which has fallen most of the day, caused the postponement of the removal of the battle flags from the historical library back to the capitol, with accompanying ceremonies, this afternoon. The weather was watched anxiously up to the hour fixed, when Gov. La Follette issued a verbal order for the postponement of the exercises, fearing, with good reason, that the dampness would ruin the war relics. The date for the exercises has not been definitely fixed, but it will be about May 21. A large crowd, including many from out of town, gathered at the capitol to witness the exercises and the removal of the flags.

The old soldiers had an impromptu meeting in the Assembly chamber while a committee of their comrades was holding a conference with Gov. La Follette with reference to the postponement of the exercises on account of the inclement weather. Speeches were made by Col. Gray, Capt. E. W. Mangleburg of Milwaukee and Assemblyman George Spratt.

FREIGHT CARS PILED UP.

Queer Accident to a Train at Niagara in Which Twenty Cars Are Destroyed.

Marquette, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Twenty box cars were piled up in a mass of wreckage at the foot of a steep incline yesterday. A train of twelve cars, which was at the top of the hill, got away from the locomotive and plunged down at a terrific speed into eight cars standing on the track at the foot of the hill. The entire twenty cars were practically destroyed. No one was injured. The trainmen at the foot of the incline made an effort to save the cars below, but were unable to get them out of the way in time.

GARLAND AMONG THE INDIANS

Well-Known Wisconsin Writer Gathering Material for Stories.

La Crosse, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Hamlin Garland, author who wrote some of his best stories while visiting his father at the old Garland homestead in West Salem, announces that he will journey to the Rocky mountains during the coming summer, where he will live among the Indian tribes for the purpose of gathering material for several new stories which he has in contemplation.

STOLEN FROM ELROY.

Three Men Arrested at La Crosse Accused of Burglary.

La Crosse, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—The police learned that the goods, which were found on the persons of the men, who were arrested here Saturday afternoon, were stolen at Elroy, where the store of A. W. Fields was entered last Friday night. Mr. Fields identified the goods and the men were taken to Elroy for trial.

A MALLEABLE IRON PLANT.

Oshkosh Manufacturers Will Form a Stock Company.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—A movement is afoot to be started among the various manufacturers in this city, who use malleable iron in their business, to establish a plant in this city. It is proposed to form a stock company, in which the manufacturers of wagons, carriages, pumps, heating stoves, and other concerns requiring malleable iron will be the principal stockholders.

DRIVES SISTER TO SUICIDE.

Clara Barnard of Oshkosh Took Poison for Strange Reason.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Clara Barnard drank muriatic acid because her younger sister persisted in going to dances against her advice. Physicians pronounced her condition hopeful.

MR. GREGORY RESIGNS.

He Severs His Connection with State University and Goes to Iowa.

Madison, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—It has been definitely announced that Prof. Charles Noble Gregory, assistant dean of the law school of the university, has accepted the offer of the regents of the University of Iowa to accept the chairmanship of the Iowa law school.

Mr. Gregory confirmed the report last evening. He will begin his duties as the head of the Iowa school at the opening of the next school year.

Mr. Gregory is a son of the late J. C. Gregory, a well-known member of the Wisconsin bar. After graduating from the university and the college of law he entered into a partnership with his father and the late Justice Silas U. Pinney of the Wisconsin Supreme court. In 1893 he was called to fill the position of associate dean in the law school. He has held many public offices and has filled many positions of honor and trust. He served the city as alderman for three years and as a member of the board of education for one term; he was a member of the National Civil Service Reform association for several years and has been for three years a member of the executive committee of the American Bar association and is now serving his fourth term as a member of the general council of that organization. Last year he was chairman of a committee on legal education of the American bar. He is also an ex-president of the Wisconsin University Alumni association, was formerly editor of the Wisconsin State Historical society and has been similarly identified with many other organizations. He is president of the Madison society of the Sons of the American Revolution. As a law writer Mr. Gregory has a wide reputation, having contributed many articles to the leading American and English law publications. His contributions to current literature have been of a high order and are well distributed among the best literary publications, both English and American. R. S. Gregory, president of the Chicago Bar association is a brother of the dean.

COULDN'T PROVE IT.

No Evidence Against Kenosha Young Woman Arrested Charged with Stealing.

Kenosha, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Mrs. Frank Brown, a well-known young woman of this city, was arrested yesterday on a charge of petty larceny. The complaining witness was Fred Becker, a member of the county board. The case was brought up before Justice Slater and Mrs. Brown was acquitted of the charges against her. The evidence in the case showed that Mrs. Brown had formerly resided in the same house with Mrs. and Mrs. Becker. On the evening of December 5 of last year a purse containing $16 was stolen from Mrs. Becker. No report of the case was made to the police office and for a time the Becker family made every effort to find out where the purse and money had gone. During the day it was said that Mrs. Brown had made a social call on Mrs. Becker and had walked past the place where the purse had been left. Some time later a report was circulated that Mrs. Brown had stolen the purse. She denied the allegation and finally consulted a lawyer with the purpose of bringing suit against Mr. Becker, who she alleged had circulated the report. The attorney approached by Mrs. Brown wrote a demand letter to the supervisor and demanded that he desist from telling of the alleged robbery unless he was able to prove his statements. Becker at once went to the district attorney and demanded the arrest of Mrs. Brown. The complaint was made out and Mrs. Brown was arrested. When the case came up in court yesterday the evidence was very weak and the accused woman was promptly dismissed by the justice. It is now against Mr. and Mrs. Becker charging them with defaming her character.

SUSPICION OF MURDER.

Body of an Unknown Man Found in Eau Claire River Near Greenwood.

Greenwood, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—The body of a woodsman was found in the east fork of the Eau Claire river, seven miles west of town, Sunday. So far it is not recognized, no one from any of the camps in this section or above this point having been missing. It is thought by some that it is a result of a fall from a tree or a fall from the stream. An inquest is being held today by the authorities of the town of Mendon, where the body was found. The man was evidently about 25 years old and dressed as a woodsman with driving shoes on his feet.

OLD MAN TRIES SUICIDE.

John Fisher of Kenosha Searched in Vain for Fortune.

Kenosha, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—John Fisher, for many years a well-known character about the Kenosha harbor, was found in an unconscious condition under one of the approaches of the Main street bridge. A piece of telephone wire was twisted about the old man's neck and it is supposed that he tried to commit suicide by hanging himself with it. Fisher had led a strange life in Kenosha. He left Germany and came to Kenosha to make a fortune. But fortune failed to smile on him and for some time the old man had been an outcast.

MILWAUKEE BOYS ARRESTED.

Herbert Peacock and Fred Manthey Want to See the World.

Fond du Lac, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Herbert Peacock and Fred Manthey, two Milwaukee boys aged 16 and 17 years respectively, were taken in charge by Officer Stevenson of the police force last evening and booked at the station as runaways. The boys stated that they were tired of the quiet life in the Cream City and were going out to see the world. Peacock says he was a bellboy in a Milwaukee hotel and Manthey says he was employed in a tin shop. In court this morning the boys were discharged.

JUMPED FOR THEIR LIVES.

Head-End Collision on Milwaukee Road at Marinette.

Marinette, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—There was a head-end collision in the Milwaukee yards last night. A yard engine and an incoming freight train on the main line. The engines and freight train jumped the tracks and the freight train, which was loaded with lumber, was badly wrecked and had to be taken to Green Bay for repairs.

APPLINGTON SALOON ROBBERED.

Appleton, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—The saloon of Michael Massonetti was burglarized last night. The slot machine was wrecked and a few dollars taken, also a few boxes of cigars and bottles of liquor. It was the work of a local gang.

GAME WARDEN'S BIG HAUNT.

Appleton, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Deputy Game Warden Wait this morning captured 300 feet of nets and 100 pounds of fish in Lake Winnebago, near Neenah. The nets were burned and the fish confiscated.

SPORTING ITEMS.

John Grim, who was signed by Indianapolis, has gone to Louisville, where Wilcox will give him a trial on the Western association team of that city. Grim has played great ball in practice this year, and it looks as if a permanent place awaits him at Louisville.

"Have you noticed," asked Manager McGraw to a Cleveland scribe, "where the men who were named to American league clubs by National league teams last year went when the time came to declare themselves? All of them kicked awfully against being sent to the American league last year. Yet after playing alongside our men for a season they liked the company so well that they all preferred to go to the society of their 1899 players. All of these men were wanted back by their former clubs, and they deliberately turned round and said to the American league, which they had once despised: 'We like you too well to quit. We'll stick.' These farm-out players were Yeager, Brodie, Schnockengust, McKenna, Houghill, Casey, Helmes, Sparks, Anderson, Grisham, Fultz and Ketchum—a list of good ball players."

The Labor league of Philadelphia has adopted resolutions favoring the Philadelphia club of the American league. This action was brought about by a boycott which had been placed upon the American league park by the painters, sheet metal workers and plumbers. An explanation of what caused the boycott was made and the matter was adjusted. The Labor league also took occasion to severely criticize the Philadelphia National league club for employing nonunion men when its new park was built several years ago.

Manager George Tebeau of the Kansas City Western league team has leased the park that Jimmy Manning used last season.

Manager Strobel of Toledo will engage in no fight for Tuck Turner, the first baseman, but let Colorado Springs have him, as they claim he signed with them.

The defeat of Eddie Santry, the Chicago featherweight, at the hands of "Young" Corbett at Denver last week has given the ex-champion a setback that he will never be able to recover from. Santry was put out of the running when he ran against Terry McGovern at Tattersall's in Chicago over a year ago. That was the downfall of the clever boxer, as he never had the confidence in himself after that. Corbett is a strong young fellow with a good punch in either hand, as was demonstrated when he fought the heavy Vanger at Denver. He may not be able to hold his own with Kid Brand and Terry McGovern, but he will give the rest of the featherweights a run for their money.

Tim Callahan, the Philadelphia featherweight, has been matched to meet Terry McGovern on the coast. They will box twenty rounds at 124 pounds before the National Athletic club of San Francisco. Callahan will leave for California in about ten days. Callahan holds the unique distinction of being the only boxer who has a decision over McGovern scored to his credit. On July 25, 1898, he was declared winner over the famous Brooklynite in eleven rounds on a foul, the fight taking place in the City of Churches. In November following they met again, and McGovern knocked Callahan out in ten rounds.

"Young" Gibbs, the Ohio lightweight champion, has posted a $50 forfeit and is ready to fight a challenge to meet anyone at 133 to 138 pounds in a limited or full fight in private for $200 to $500 a side.

Bob Armstrong, a colored pugilist, formerly a trainer for Tom Sharkey, has gone to Denver, where he will train Fred Russell for his fight with Sharkey on April 26.

Joe Bernstein will not train Oscar Gardner for his coming battle with Terry McGovern. The colddies that was necessary between the two men since their arrival in "Prisco" has become a veritable snowstorm, and now the two go different ways.

Young Gartfield, the west side featherweight of Chicago, knocked out Phil Riley of the south side Saturday night in the fourth round of what was to have been a gloves-off fight. The affair took place before a private club on the south side in Chicago.

Dan Crenshaw, the former Australian fighter, and Jimmy Haugler of Newark, N. J., will meet in a twenty-round contest tonight at Memphis. Haugler is the favorite.

Yanger has posted his forfeit to fight Johnny Ritchie and the boys will meet in Memphis on April 22.

The friends of the American jockeys now in England are so far disappointed at the season's work. Not a single American appeared at Leicester Saturday. L. Reiff has lost fifteen out of twenty races. J. Reiff thirty-one out of thirty-six and Maher sixteen out of twenty. These failures are variously attributed to the wet that has set in, the English jockeys have adopted the American style of riding.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER.

The Wife and Mother-in-Law of Mr. Charles Keys.

Clarissa, Minn., April 15.—[Special].—No family in this vicinity is better known or more universally respected, than Mr. Charles Keys, the local school teacher, and his estimable wife, and mother-in-law. For a long time Mrs. Keys has been in ill health. Recently, however, she has found a cure for her ailments in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I cannot speak too highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills, or of what they have done for me," said Mrs. Keys. "My life was miserable, my back aches, my head aches, my eyes ached, also my head. I was troubled with neuralgia in the head and face and suffered extreme pain, but thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills, all those aches and pains have vanished like the morning dew, and I now seem to be life is worth living. I consider Dodd's Kidney Pills a God-send to suffering humanity. They may rightly be termed the Elixir of Youth."

"While speaking of my own case and the wonderful benefit I have received, I might also add that my mother, who is now an old lady of 74 years and who lives with me, has been troubled more or less with aches and pains, as is natural with one of her advanced age. When she saw what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for me she commenced to use them herself, and she says that they have done her more good than any other medicine she has ever tried. This testimony is given in the hope that others who may be afflicted as we were may see and read it, and be benefited by it."

What Mrs. Keys states in her letter can be verified by reference to any of her many friends in this neighborhood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have already a wonderful reputation in Todd County. Nothing has ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy but Dodd's Kidney Pills.

OWNER'S ILLNESS CAUSES FAILURE.

Woffram Lumberyard and Mill at Appleton Seized Under Mortgage Foreclosure.

Appleton, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—The lumberyard and planingmill of August Woffram was seized this morning under foreclosure of chattel mortgage for $2800 held by C. Ludwig and H. Schuchman of Appleton. Other debts amount to $1500. The stock inventories at $7500. The failure due to bad accounts and illness of owner.

BELOIT DECIDES TO GRANT FRANCHISE.

Common Council Decides to Admit the Interurban Road to the City.

Beloit, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—At a meeting of the common council last night it was decided to grant a franchise to the Interurban Electric Railway company, and the judiciary committee was instructed to prepare an ordinance which would be acceptable both to the city and to the company represented by H. H. Clough. The workmen of the city sent petitions to the council to grant a franchise.

DEATH CLAIMS ENTIRE FAMILY.

Evil Spirit Seems to Have Taken Possession of Camp of John Thunder.

Black River Falls, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Grim death stalks in the camp of Thunder. Four of the younger members of the family have died within a week in the same wigwam in which Big Medicine Man and head of Thunder died a few days ago. The family is panic-stricken and all the noted medicine men of the tribe have been called in and the ton tons and weird ceremonies are being worked overtime to drive away the evil spirit that threatens to wipe out the family. Pneumonia seems to be the trouble.

GIVEN CUSTODY OF KIDNAPED BOY.

Foster Parents Given "Bernie" Mollit on Habeas Corpus Proceeding at Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—John Mollit, a Chicago lawyer, was awarded the custody of John Bernard Mollit, 9 years old, who was abducted by his mother from the Chicago man last August. The boy had been given by his mother to Mollit in 1895. After taking the boy away the mother died, and the boy was put in charge of his relatives, who live at Altoona. Mollit and his wife were devotedly attached to the lad and made a vigorous search for him. After many weeks they finally succeeded in locating him by means of a registered letter, and the proceedings for his recovery were commenced in the courts here.

SPORTSMEN FORM STATE ASSOCIATION.

Society Is Organized at a Meeting Held at Eau Claire—Plans for Field Trials.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Wisconsin State Field Trial association was organized at a meeting in the city this morning, the following officers being elected: President, A. J. Klotz of Eau Claire; vice-president, B. E. Chapin of La Crosse; secretary, D. W. Guthrie of Grand Rapids; treasurer, L. G. Hart of Eau Claire. The objects of the association, which is the first of the kind in the state, are good fellowship, to enforce game laws, improve breed of dogs, increase interest in sports with dog and gun and hold field trials on chicken or quail or both and to bring sportsmen into closer touch in friendly contests with shooting dogs.

About thirty sportsmen have applied for membership. The next meeting will be at this city about the middle of June. The American Field will present a silver cup as the trophy for the best dog at the first field trial to be held in August or September.

INDIANS ARE NOT PLEASED.

Winnebagoes Do Not Like Dr. Powell's Appointment.

Black River Falls, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—The action of Dr. Frank Powell, White Beaver, in appointing "Going Away" successor to John Thunder, was severely denounced by the Winnebagoes in council when they met to elect Thunder's successor. They recognize "White Beaver" as their medicine chief, but they think he is outside of the tradition without consulting them. He appoints a friend to the vacancy at the head of the medicine men, "Striking Tree" or "Little Soldier" is the choice of the Indians. Dr. Powell will be asked to revoke his appointment.

THREE YEARS IN PRISON.

Horstchief Pleads Guilty at Appleton and Takes His Medicine.

Appleton, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—Frank Camden of Seymour, who attempted to steal a horse and buggy in that village Saturday night, but was caught in the act, appeared before Judge Goodland in the circuit court yesterday, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, where he was taken today.

Frank Murphy, suspected of intent to blow open the safe at the Ashland division depot in Kaukauna, last fall, but was betrayed by an alleged "pal" and has been in jail here all winter, was tried in the circuit court yesterday afternoon and acquitted for lack of evidence.

ADVERTISED FOR A WIFE.

Practical Joke Played on a Confirmed Celibate of New Holstein.

New Holstein, Wis., April 16.—[Special].—A farmer named Munster, a confirmed celibate, residing alone near here, was recently made the butt of a practical joke and as a result he is looking rather curiously for the pokers. A large board carrying the legend "Wife Wanted: Apply Within," was prepared and hung over his house in plain sight of the passers-by, and there it remained, unnoticed by him, for over a week.

THEY MAY HAVE ELOPED.

Young Girl and Boy of Baraboo Mysteriously Disappear.

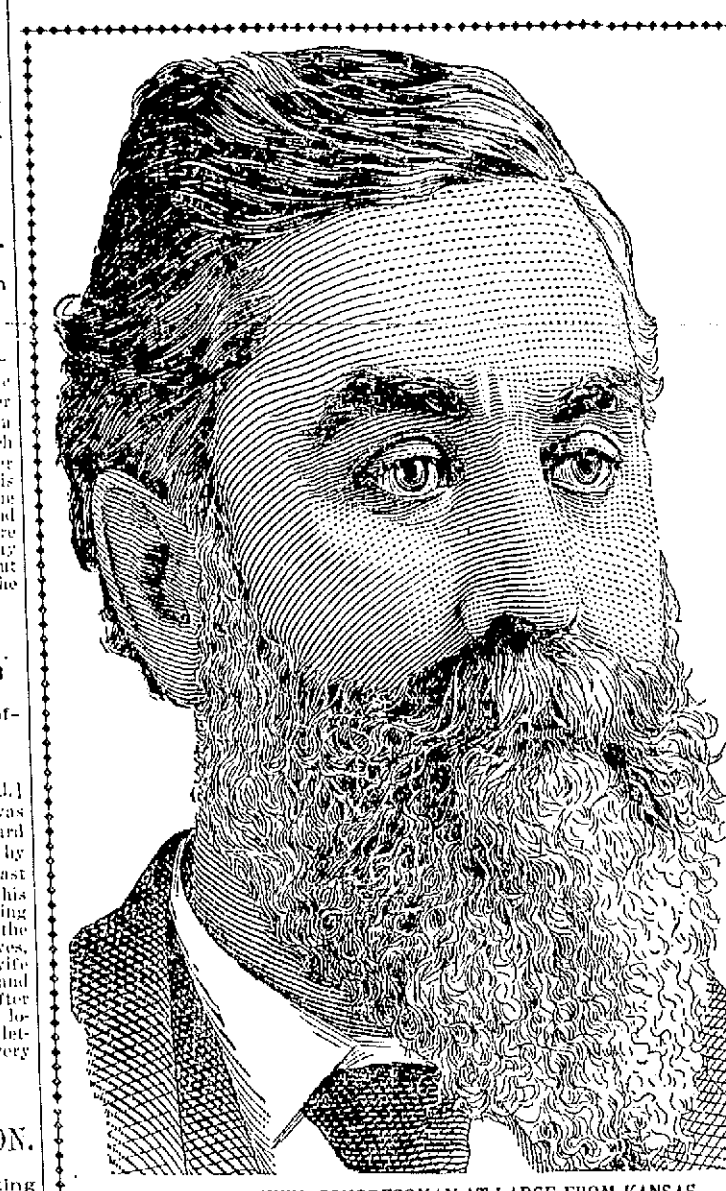

Baraboo, Wis., April 16.—Helen Wood, a 16-year-old girl, has disappeared and nothing has been heard of her since. A young man of this city with whom she had been on friendly terms is also missing and nothing can be ascertained of his whereabouts. It is believed that the young couple have eloped and gone to some neighboring city to be married. The young woman is the daughter of G. F. Wood.

CONGRESSMAN BOTKIN

The Well-Known Kansas Statesman, Cured of Catarrh of the Stomach by Pe-ru-na,

AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS' SUFFERING

More Evidence of Interest to the Millions of Catarrh Sufferers in the United States.

HON. J. D. BOTKIN, CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE FROM KANSAS.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartmann, Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kan., whose fame is a national one, says of Peruna:

My Dear Doctor:—"It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manafin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections."—J. D. Botkin, Congressman-at-Large.

CONGRESSMAN BOTKIN is one of the most influential and best known men in the State of Kansas. Whatever he may say on any subject will be accepted by the people as the truth. So famous a remedy as Peruna could not have well escaped the attention of so famous a man. He has only his word for it, however, but he has used it and was relieved of an affliction of twenty-five years' standing. Peruna is the one internal remedy that cures chronic catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. This is a fact that the people are rapidly finding out, but there are still a large multitude who need to know it.

Mr. Frank Richter, of Winona, Minn., says in a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company: "As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I know what it is to be afflicted with this awful disease and consider it my duty to say a word in behalf of the remedy which gave me such relief. Peruna cured me, and I know it will cure any one else who suffers from this disease. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the curative effects of this medicine. Peruna is a well tested and frequently used remedy, and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed."

My catarrh was principally located in my head and stomach. I tried many remedies without success. I tried several doctors, but they were unable to cure me. I read of Peruna in papers and five bottles cured me."—Frank Richter.

The gastric juice is secreted by the mucous follicles of the stomach. When this juice is normal it digests (dissolves) the food without producing any disturbance whatever. If, however, the gastric juice is not normal, digestion causes many disagreeable symptoms. This condition is known as indigestion. Peruna will cure this.

Birds—Their Use in the World. The bird has his use in the world, just as well as the man, and the Legislature that spares him from being the target of the idle person will earn the approval of all right-thinking men. The farmer who kills birds because they peck at his fruit should remember that those birds do not care for fruit in any of its stages. When he drives away the swallows that follow the reaper, believing that they are eating his grain, he probably is not aware that the birds eat the worms and insects that disturb the grain. When, again, he kills the birds because they infest his grain fields, he probably does not know that it is these birds that catch the field mice that are the real devourers of his grain.—Success.

New Spinning Machine. Some two years ago a resident of Boston, Mass., devised a new spinning machine, which he took with him to Bradford, the center of the spinning industry of Great Britain. There, aided by local engineers and experts, he improved his machine, which is now in active operation. It is capable of spinning a variety of materials, such as wools and goat hair, as easily and as readily as cotton, and when completed it is difficult to determine the original nature of the fabric.

To Prevent Mold and Damp. A few drops of any perfumed oil will secure libraries from the consuming effects of moldiness and damp. Russian leather, which is perfumed with the tar of the birch tree, never molds; and merchants suffer large losses of this article to lie in the London docks in the most careless manner, knowing that it can sustain no injury from damp.

CRANMOOR.

The Henry Zirbel family whose farm lies four miles east of Cranmoor, are erecting a new house on the ground where the old house and all its contents were consumed by fire one windy night last winter. Their immediate neighbors recently made a bee and donated a good day's work on the building. "Hard land" as we term Mr. Zirbel's locality is a little out of our province, but the family is well known to all our people and we are naturally interested in our hard land as well as marsh land neighbors.

A well selected program was finely rendered at the school house last Sabbath afternoon by the pupils of Miss Dorothy Fitch's Sunday school. The little folks are certainly interested and showed careful training. The entertainment was worthy the attendance of the entire neighborhood.

James Gaynor has been up town the greater part of the week superintending the construction of a new cranberry machine. The device we believe is one of his own invention and we trust will prove as satisfactory as some others from the same source.

We noticed a quantity of household goods at the station platform last Monday that had come up from Mather for our new neighbors the Griswolds. Mr. Griswold is foreman at the J. B. Arpin marsh and is domiciled at one of the Arpin houses.

With a host of other friends we give thanks for the return home from the Oshkosh hospital, of Miss Rose McCauley, and rejoice that she comes with every prospect of restored health.

A washout six feet deep and twenty feet long makes quite a serious break in one of the dams on Morgan Potters marsh. Mr. Potter came down today to repair the damage.

Harry and Harriet Whitlesey met their brother Charles at Nekoosa last Saturday and with other congenial spirits enjoyed the party of the evening.

Mrs. A. C. Otto of Grand Rapids has been visiting at the home of her brother Robert Steel, coming down Saturday evening with Mr. Kruger.

Miss Maud Griffith was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rezin Sunday last. Mrs. Thomas Rezin was a caller also at the same house.

Miss Dorothy Fitch is at home again after a visit of several weeks with her many friends at Wausau.

The return of Thomas McGovern from Rochester, Minn., is daily expected.

Miss Anna Grauger visited her home in Grand Rapids Saturday and Sunday.

Timothy Foley drove to Nekoosa and other points early in the day Monday.

Mrs. S. N. Whitlesey was a business caller at Nekoosa Monday morning.

Mr. Edward Kruger transacted business at the county seat Saturday.

PORT EDWARDS.

Sherman Cleveland has moved his household goods from their old home to the house formerly occupied by E. C. Burrows. This makes it handier for Miss Cleveland for her school work.

Anna Munding, Mary Leverance, Clara Wendland and Rosie Gahler are attending the German school in your city. They go up on the train every morning and back at night.

Geo. B. Brazeau and Henry Martin will soon start to build new homes in our city. Mr. Martin will rent his farm and move here so as to be nearer his work at the mill.

Stephen Brazeau Sr., went to Grand Rapids Wednesday and will stay with Mrs. Chas. Quinn until his son Edward is settled at Nekoosa.

Steve Rantz the millwright expects to move his family here soon and will occupy the house vacated by J. E. Brazeau.

O. W. Dodge's new driving horse arrived last Saturday. Mr. Dodge is well satisfied with his purchase.

Mrs. Viola Garrison of your city spent a few days in our city the guest of her brother Emile.

W. A. Brazeau is breaking ground for his new home which he is going to build near the church.

Mrs. Herbert Lapham is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. S. Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thomas of Nekoosa visited friends here last Saturday evening.

About 15 of our young people attended the dance at Nekoosa last Saturday evening.

A. M. Pride the Tomahawk paper mill man visited our paper mills last Saturday.

J. E. Brazeau moved his family to Nekoosa Thursday.

Landlord Deyo spent Wednesday at Mosinee looking for a cook for his hotel.

SHERRY.

Mr. Irivson and family arrived Tuesday and will reside for sometime on the old Willard's farm. Mr. Irivson has purchased a section of land of Benson and Anderton.

Young Mr. Irivson had the misfortune of a painful accident of being shot in the toe by an accidental discharge of his gun.

Mrs. W. J. Trussel and grand daughter Pearl will return home this week from a pleasant visit with relatives at Minnetonka.

Geo. Martin, real estate agent, came here Wednesday with several men looking for investments in land.

Tim O'Connell is delivering nursery stock to the farmers this week.

The Becker Lumber Co. shipped two carloads of lumber this week.

Our creamery at this place will run daily until further notice.

We have just received a complete stock of garden and field seeds from Northrup, King & Co. All northern grown and warranted. Centralia Hardware Co.

GENERAL COUNTY.

There is no question now that Marshfield has the largest and best herd of short-horns in the United States, including more blooded Scotch cattle, which are credited to be the choicest grade on the market anywhere. C. E. Blodgett has just returned from Canada where he purchased forty head at a cost of $5500, making the total number of short-horns now owned by him on his celebrated farm southwest of the city more than two hundred. He bought one well known breeder's entire herd of thirty-six head for $12,000 and the balance he selected from other stock farms in Canada. The shipment will arrive here about the 26th inst. in three cars, some little time being required in transferring them over the Canadian border and registering in the United States. The expense of this including freight charges, etc., will figure up close to a thousand dollars.

Through the Blodgett farm Marshfield has become known the country over as a stock center of no secondary importance. Mr. Blodgett states that he will hold a big stock sale here in October which will attract buyers from Maine to California and fill the city with visitors. He will also enter seventeen head at the sale to be held in Madison on May 14th by the Wisconsin Breeders' association.—Marshfield News.

Some of the farmers in the county have been feeding potatoes to their stock since the drop in prices. They claim that this is more profitable than hauling them any distance to market with the tubers bringing only 18 cents a bushel. Besides the low price they are obliged to be of the very best in quality which is another factor that detracts from the profit.

Last Friday H. P. White, sporting editor of the Chicago Tribune, purchased Dr. H. A. Lathrop's four year old Billy, Chocolate, for $1,000, the highest price ever paid for a colt raised in Wood county.—Marshfield News.

Mrs. Julia Marx of the town of Vesper died on Wednesday, after an illness extending over several months. Deceased was 48 years old and leaves a husband and several children to mourn her loss.

Charles Miller of Vesper has sold his farm of ninety-six acres to Marshfield parties. Mr. Miller will probably buy another tract of land in this vicinity and continue the vocation of farming.

The sawmill at Vesper will commence operations this week. There are about 400,000 feet of logs on hand which are owned by E. W. King of Pittsville.

BIRON.

F. M. Stearns went to Star Lake Monday to take charge of the sawmill of Salsick & Wilson.

James Demars died Thursday morning at 3 a. m., after a lingering illness of almost two years.

A few of the boys attended the dance at Nekoosa Saturday night last and report a fine time.

Ang. Kempfert, accompanied by his son Harry, went to Appleton Tuesday on business.

Miss Anna Allen of Oshkosh is visiting with her aunt, Mrs. F. M. Stearns.

Mrs. Alpine spent the later part of this week with friends at Nekoosa.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses were granted during the past week:

Joseph L. Hennes to Julia Alina Beyer, both of Marshfield.

Joseph Chappe, Nekoosa, to Voltaire Jorgenskie, town of Grand Rapids.

Frank C. Meitner to Christina Schmitz, both of Richfield.

Frank E. Smith to Minnie McBurney, Pittsville.

Jacob E. Jackson to Lorinda M. Morrison, both of Marshfield.

Got Six Months.

A. C. Loucks, who was arrested at Marshfield for wife beating, had his trial in that city Friday and was fined $100 or given six months in the county jail. In default of payment he will serve out the term.

PICKLE INDUSTRY STARTED.

Contracts for Kegerage now Being Made with Farmers.

During the past week A. W. Moody of Green Bay, who represents Alart & McGuire, has been in the city looking over the ground and getting matters in readiness for the season's planting and assisting in the making of contracts for kegerage. The work up to date has progressed favorably and there is no doubt in the minds of those interested that before planting time comes the necessary contracts will have been closed to make the scheme a success.

During the past few weeks the business men of the city have guaranteed enough money to insure the erection of a salting station this point, and now the only thing that remains to be done is for the farmers in this vicinity to make the necessary contracts. Mr. Moody states that at least 150 acres should be contracted for in order to make a success of the enterprise, but that the company could handle the cucumbers from 300 acres with profit.

Wherever the raising of cucumbers has been thoroughly tried by farmers it has proven a paying venture. It has peculiarities that especially recommend it above many crops that the farmers hereabouts are attempting to make a profit out of every year. One of the advantages is the fact that the company in making its contracts in the spring tells just what price will be paid for the product upon delivery, so that the only factor that has any bearing on the income is the size of the crop. Most crops raised are subject to the fluctuations of the market, so that almost invariably when the prices are high the crop is short, and when there is a good crop so that the farmer might reap a benefit, then the prices are so low that it is hardly worth while to draw the product to market.

One of the things that speaks very favorably for the raising of cucumbers is the fact that those who made a trial of the matter last year have been the first to come and ask for contracts this season, and last year was a very unfavorable season. About four thousand bushels were shipped from this place last season, this being the result of the experiments.

E. P. Daly, who has been largely instrumental in securing the location of the salting station at this place, is making the contracts with the farmers. It would be well for farmers who wish to make contracts to signify their intentions as early as possible so that the company may be able to figure on what they will have to prepare for at this point.

Papermakers Organize.

On Sunday, April 4th, the papermakers of this vicinity met at Natwick's hall and perfected an organization. The organization here will be known as The Wisconsin River Valley Lodge No. 27, Brotherhood of Papermakers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Frank Barrett. Vice President—Fred Neber. Recording Secretary—Sheridan Jessemere. Financial Secretary—John Alpine. Treasurer—Louis Schuh. The lodge starts out with thirty-five charter members.

A General Invitation.

The following communication was received by the editor on Thursday. No explanations are necessary as it fully explains itself.

Elks Organize.

On Sunday afternoon the gentlemen who had signified their willingness to become members of the lodge of Elks at this place met at the K. P. hall and effected an organization.

The meeting was called to order by W. H. Carey, who has had the organization under his supervision, he being a member of the order. The following officers were elected:

Exalted Ruler—W. J. Conway.
Esteemed Leading Knight—A. G. Miller.
Esteemed Loyal Knight—Otto Roenius.
Esteemed Lecturing Knight—Dr. J. C. Conniff.
Secretary—John Jaeger.
Treasurer—L. P. Witter.
Tyler—Sam Church.
Trustees—E. Oberbeck, W. H. Carey and Dr. O. T. Houghton.
Esquire—Dr. A. L. Ridgman.
Chaplain—L. M. Schlatterer.

The date for installation and initiation of members was set for Wednesday, April 24th, and the work will be done under the supervision of a team from Stevens Point. Visiting members are expected from Marshfield, Stevens Point and Wausau and it is expected that there will be an attendance of about one hundred at the banquet that occurs that evening.

A committee consisting of Dr. Chas. Pomainville, Ed. Whitney, Guy Nash, Oscar Hattaway and Alex Muir was appointed to make arrangements for entertaining the visitors and getting the spread in readiness. The Foresters hall has been engaged for the latter purpose.

Preparations are now in progress for the banquet and something out of the ordinary is looked for.

NEW COUNCIL MEETS.

Officers Appointed and other Business Transacted.

The new council met in regular session on Tuesday evening with Mayor Wheelan in the chair.

The following appointments were made for the ensuing year:

City clerk—M. G. Gordon.
City attorney—B. R. Goggins.
City engineer—E. I. Phillee.
City physician—Dr. F. Pomainville.
Chief of Police—John Garbiche.
Day police—James Gibson.
Night police, east side—John Raath.
Night police, west side—Herbert Kellogg.

Other routine business was disposed of, but nothing out of the ordinary was taken up.

Severely Bruised.

Joseph Duff met with an accident on Saturday while employed in unloading logs at the mill of the Grand Rapids Lumber Company which might have resulted in a much more serious manner.

He had loosened the fastenings on a car of logs and when they started to roll he stepped back to avoid being struck. In the meantime one of the other workmen had loosened the fastenings on the next car and when Mr. Duff stepped back he was right along side the other car. As the logs started from the first car the jar started those on the second one and one of the logs struck him on the shoulder and he was thrown down and into the pond, several logs tumbling over and about him. The result was that his spine was injured somewhat and he was badly bruised about the shoulder, although no bones were broken. Mr. Duff has since been confined to his home by his bruises, but it is not anticipated that he will suffer any permanent injury.

Farmers' Institute for June.

University of Wisconsin, MADISON, Wis., April 10, 1901.

We are planning to hold Summer Institutes in Northern Wisconsin in June, at points in the state that are too far north to make winter meetings advisable.

If your town has a hall that can be furnished free, in which to hold a one day meeting, and your farmers and business men wish an institute to be held at your town sometime during June, write to this office for a blank petition.

Only ten or twelve of these meetings can be held and we already have a number of petitions on file. If you wish a meeting for your town, write for blank petition at once, as the earliest applications will receive the most favorable consideration.

School Commissioners Meet.

On Saturday evening the new school commissioners met and organized. Frank Garrison, who has held office during the past year, resigned and Ernest Oberbeck was elected to take his place. Geo. Corriveau, one of the newly elected commissioners, refused to qualify, and L. M. Nash was elected to fill the vacancy caused by this action.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were H. Rablin, president, and L. M. Nash, treasurer. No other business of much importance was transacted at the meeting and an adjournment was taken until Tuesday evening the 23rd instant.

WENT FOR WATERWORKS.

A Good Majority for the Improvement in Spite of a Small Vote.

On Friday last the people of Grand Rapids voted on the waterworks question and then when the vote was counted it was found that those desiring the improvement outnumbered the others two to one, the vote being 450 for and 204 against. Following is the vote by wards:

	For	Against
First ward.....	67	6
Second ward.....	94	10
Third ward.....	86	1
Fourth ward.....	75	3
Fifth ward.....	15	57
Sixth ward.....	39	63
Seventh ward.....	31	57
Eighth ward.....	13	27
Totals.....	450	204

It will be seen by the figures that the east side went for the measure in every ward while on the west side the vote was as universally against it. From this it would be inferred that the west side was pretty generally of the belief that waterworks were not a desirable thing or a necessity.

There may be arguments against the establishment of a waterworks system, and some of the arguments may be good ones. However, both sides do need waterworks, the east side because it has no adequate fire protection and the waterworks system would furnish it. The west side, because the drinking water is unfit for use and the waterworks would supply the deficiency.

There are people who claim they would rather drink river water than that from a spring. This may be so, there is no accounting for tastes. With the knowledge that sewers empty into the Wisconsin river at all the large cities along the stream these people with the depraved tastes should try to restrain themselves. The sewage and effluvia may be largely diluted and the water to a certain extent purified by oxidation and precipitation before it reaches this city, but still there is enough foreign matter held in suspension to give it a seal brown tint and to cause it to leave a similar taste in the mouth of the consumer, and any man who has kept track of events throughout the country knows that many diseases which exist in an upriver town only in isolated cases often take their appearance further down the stream where the water is used for drinking purposes in the form of a deadly epidemic, thereby causing much loss of life as well as financial embarrassment. The above are facts, and not idle fancies, and now that the chance is at hand to remedy the evil the people should be congratulated that they have improved the opportunity to do so.

May go by Boat.

Marshfield News: At Tuesday evening's meeting of the Elks lodge Dr. H. A. Lathrop, E. L. Reese and T. P. Lyons were appointed a committee on ways and means of attending the Milwaukee carnival in July. A meeting of the several Central Wisconsin lodges will be held in Grand Rapids next Wednesday, at which time the local committee will submit a proposition to have Wausau, Stevens Point, Grand Rapids, Eau Claire and Marshfield lodges unite on an excursion to the Cream City via Green Bay and Lake Michigan, taking with them the Second Regiment band which will be entered for the first prize in the country band contest. The plan is to charter a steamer at Green Bay capable of accommodating at least 150 persons and upon reaching Milwaukee anchor in the heart of the city where the boat may be used as headquarters for the party during their stay. Many lodges are adopting suits of distinctive colors for the occasion and this may also be done by the Central Wisconsin contingent.

Travel Class Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Lipke entertained the members of the Travel class and their husbands on Wednesday evening and a very pleasant time was spent, about twenty-five being present.

Among the entertaining features of the evening was a series of 50 lantern slides illustrative of the city of Paris and a lecture on the subject, this part of the entertainment being under the management of F. MacKinnon.

Another feature was a guessing game, the answers to which being names of prominent men of the present day. This occasioned a great deal of fun and amusement. Refreshments were served in the later part of the evening and the guests are loud in their praise of Mr. and Mrs. Lipke as entertainers.

Death of James Demars.

James Demars, who has resided at Byron for several years past, died on Thursday after an extended illness. He was thirty years of age and leaves two children, his wife having died some time ago. His brother Fred arrived from Hazelhurst the same day. The funeral will be held today from the Catholic church.

STILL REACHING OUT.

Morgan Said to be Engineering a Combine of Locomotive Plants.

New York, April 16.—The World says: Negotiations are said to be in progress for the purchase of the Cooke Locomotive works in Paterson, N. J., by a syndicate headed, according to report, by J. Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and leading men in the billion-dollar steel trust. The Cooke company has one of the best-equipped locomotive building plants in the country.

Negotiations by the syndicate to secure the Cooke plant are said to be the initial step in the formation of the locomotive combine which will be closely allied with the United States Steel corporation.

It is reported that the syndicate proposes to absorb all the locomotive building companies east of the Mississippi and that negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the Baldwin Locomotive works at Philadelphia, the Schenck Locomotive works and the Portland Locomotive works of Maine. The price offered is said to be $1,000,000 and the Cooke family intimated last night that such a sum would be wanted.

Combine of Copper Plants.

The Tribune says: It can be announced on the best of authority that all the preliminary arrangements have been made for the transfer of the Boston & Montana Copper and Silver company and the Butte & Boston Mining company by the Amalgamated Copper company. The proposition made is that the stockholders of the Butte & Boston deposit with the trustees 125,000 shares of the outstanding 200,000 shares. These shares are of the par value of $10 and will be exchanged for Amalgamated stock or paid for in cash at $22.50 if the deal goes through. Ten days from April 22 will be the date at which to carry out the plan. In the case of 100,000 shares is required out of a total of 150,000 outstanding of a par value of $25 each. These shares are to be exchanged for Amalgamated stock at $37.50 in cash if the deal is accomplished within ten days.

After Michigan Mines.

There is a general belief among those well informed on the copper situation that the foregoing are only preliminary to a much larger expansion of the Amalgamated company, which aims to take in, eventually, all the copper mines of Michigan and Arizona, as well as those of Montana. This would give the company a practical control of the copper situation in this country with the exception of the Heitz holdings in Butte. Senator W. Clark and his sons are believed to be in on the new deal.

Basis of Consolidation.

Boston, Mass., April 16.—Kidder, Peabody & Co. announced that they have been requested to arrange a consolidation of the Boston & Montana Copper and Silver Mining company and the Butte & Boston Mining company with the Amalgamated Copper company upon some equitable basis. They will require before undertaking to arrange the terms a deposit of 125,000 shares of Butte & Boston and 100,000 shares of Boston & Montana. The directors of both companies recommended the deposit of holdings upon the following terms:

Deposit of stock must be made on or before April 27. In case the arrangement is not completed within seven days after that date the stock deposited will be returned. Depositors will have ten days after the announcement of the terms to accept either of the following propositions:

To receive such number of shares of the Amalgamated company as may be called for under the terms of the agreement or to receive $27.50 per share in cash for Boston & Montana and $22.50 per share in cash for Butte & Boston, or to withdraw the stock deposited without expense. In case any underwriting is necessary, Kidder, Peabody & Co. agree that all holders who elect to exchange for Amalgamated stock may share in pro rata.

SOUNDS A WARNING.

Treasury Department—Concerned Over the Prevailing Mania for Speculation.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—Treasury officials are concerned about the result of the overspeculation in Wall street. They have reported the matter to the President, and the influence of the treasury department is being exerted more and more to induce the New York banks to act in a more conservative manner. Treasury people talked with say that while there is no shadow of a doubt in regard to the general commercial prosperity of the country, there is cause for alarm in the condition manifested in Wall street.

There has been, these officials say, a perfect mania for the speculation in stocks and the securities of these mania-month corporations have been dealt in with feverish activity on the Stock exchange.

The treasury department is not at all concerned in ordinary stock speculation, so far as they affect the speculative element only. The financial officers of the government have been preaching conservatism for some time. They say there has been a large overcapitalization in many of the industrial enterprises and a day of reckoning is certain when an effort is made to squeeze the water out of these securities.

The thing which is troubling the treasury officials is not the fact that there has been a large speculation in Wall street, but the fact that money which belongs to legitimate commercial enterprises has been diverted into the avenues of speculation. This money must get back into the ordinary channels somehow, and a great fear is expressed that the treasury department has a serious effect upon general business.

PRINCE LOUIS WEDDED.

Napoleon Married to Daughter of Russian Grand Duke Vladimir.

Brussels, April 16.—The Petit Bleu says that Prince Louis Napoleon has married the Grand Duchess Helene, daughter of the Russian Grand Duke Vladimir. Prince Louis Napoleon was born July 16, 1854. He is the second son of the late Emperor Napoleon III. and the younger brother of the Emperor. Helene, the youngest child of the Russian Grand Duke Vladimir, was born January 29, 1882.

The Barbers' Pole. It is an interesting fact that as early as 1600 the barbers' pole existed. At that day surgery and barbering were practiced in common, as is symbolized now in the barbers' pole with its significant stripes.

In 1790 New York had a colored population of 25,078; Pennsylvania, 10,274.

TO CRUSH THE BOERS.

Kitchener Now Has 250,000 Efficient Men.

ASWEEPING MOVEMENT

Forty Boers Meet at Boshof and Solemnly Re-elect Mr. Steyn as President.

London, April 16.—London was startled yesterday by a report that Gen. French with 500 British troops had been captured by the Boers, but has been released, not only that the report is probably without foundation, but that British arms have won a fresh victory in the South African campaign. The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, April 15:

"Col. Sir Henry Rawlinson's column rushed the south larger northward of the Orange river, and twenty-three Boers were killed, ten wounded and twenty-three taken prisoners. He captured a 12-pounder, one pom-pom complete and two ammunition wagons with ammunition. Our casualties were three wounded."

"Col. Munner captured a field cornet and seven men, with ten wagons and sixteen rifles."

"During Col. Pileher's operations in the Orange colony seven Boers were killed."

A Sweeping Movement.

According to the Pretoria correspondent of the Daily Mail, important sweeping movements are about to begin on a large scale within a few weeks by Lord Kitchener. Practically all the 20,000 British reinforcements lately announced as en route to South Africa have arrived. The army now numbers 250,000 men, including 60,000 mounted troops. The supply of horses is adequate. It is expected that the Indian generals, Blood of the Chitral expedition and Elliott, who have lately arrived, will have important commands.

The army is in good spirits, and Lord Kitchener is satisfied with the progress of events, slow though it seems.

The British newspapers and magazines, commenting upon the alternating hopes and apprehensions which characterize the later stages of the South African campaign, compare these with the later stages of the American war of independence, as though to emphasize these situations.

The letters of many responsible correspondents in a rather despairing mood.

Rumors of Peace Negotiations.

There were persistent rumors on the stock exchange that peace negotiations were being conducted with the Boers and that the burghers would surrender by the end of May.

New York, April 16.—The war in South Africa, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, has already lasted nearly as long and has cost more than that against Russia which was waged at the outset of the period of expansion such as England never experienced before, and it was eleven years after the cessation of hostilities of the Crimea before the treasury, even with the aid of Mr. Gladstone's financial courage, was able to obliterate the effects of the crisis.

April 16.—A special dispatch from Cape Town, under today's date, says forty Boers recently met at Boshof and solemnly re-elected Mr. Steyn president of the Orange Free State.

STRIKE IS STILL ON.

Steel Company Declares It Will Not Recognize Union Under Any Circumstance.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 16.—The strike at the W. DeWeese Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company, at McKeesport, is still on. The mill is being operated in a crippled condition with about the same number of men working as yesterday. The strikers are patrolling the streets for the purpose of inducing the workmen to remain away from the mill, but they are keeping off the company's property, and no trouble has occurred.

President Schaffer of the Amalgamated association said he probably would call the national advisory board together tomorrow to consider the extreme action of calling out the men in the other mills of the United States Steel corporation.

Samuel J. Cooper, general manager of the Wood plant, is opposed to the recognition of the Amalgamated association. In an interview he said:

"This mill will never recognize the union. The Wood mill has been opposed to the Amalgamated association for over forty years, and the men at the head of the mill now are just as much opposed to the mill now as the former proprietors were. I have received word from headquarters that the company will never recognize the union."

If the plans now contemplated by the Amalgamated association are carried out, a suspension of operations at all the union plants of the American Sheet Steel company before the close of the week.

President T. J. Shaffer of the Amalgamated association has issued a call for a special meeting of the national advisory board, together with the vice-presidents of every district where the sheet steel combination has a plant. It will be held at national headquarters in Wall street tomorrow morning. President Shaffer, in speaking of the meeting tomorrow, said with considerable emphasis:

"I shall advise and urge all the members of the board to vote for an immediate closing of all plants of the American Sheet Steel company in the country. This will be the beginning of the fight and I will say nothing further on the subject."

When asked if the association could do more by simply shutting down the plants, he replied that the order would be sent out to close all the union tin plate and steel plants of the United States Steel corporation, Mr. Shaffer replied:

"I will say nothing more than, 'this is the beginning' and you can take what ever you desire."

ANOTHER BLIZZARD.

Snow Drifting Badly in Northern Colorado—Loss of Stock will be Great.

Denver, Col., April 16.—Reports from northern Colorado are to the effect that another storm has prevailed on the prairies for the past twenty-four hours and still continues. It began with a heavy rain and developed into a veritable blizzard. The loss of stock will be great, as they become greatly weakened by exposure to the storms of the past two weeks and lack of sufficient food. The snow is drifting badly and railroad traffic is being delayed. In the vicinity of Denver and on the plains the storm is described as the worst for years.

New Governor for Oklahoma.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—The President has decided to appoint William M. Jenkins to be governor of Oklahoma territory to succeed the present Gov. Barnes, whose term will expire soon. Mr. Jenkins is the present secretary of the territory.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

The Senate on the 10th, without discussion, concurred in the bill resolution for a constitutional amendment to the existing constitution of the State of Wisconsin. The amendment was once killed, but the vote was reconsidered. It was finally concurred in, 19 to 12. The committee on corporations reported favorably, with an amendment, the bill 45 A., providing for the licensing of billposters. The bill intended to give Gov. La Follette's objection to the bill, which was the Milwaukee Exposition company's property from taxation was advanced to third reading, in the Senate.

The bill increasing the powers and duties of the state tax commission, which was on the calendar for passage, was laid over until the 11th.

The bill creating free employment bureaus in Milwaukee and Superior was laid over.

The primary election bill was debated in the Senate for two and one-half hours on the evening of the 10th. Then the measure was laid over until the evening of the 11th, when it is expected it will be disposed of by the passage of a compromise measure applying the principle to county elections and to the latest substitute.

Gov. La Follette sent another veto to the Senate on the 11th, returning without approval Senator Whitehead's bill, 145 S., providing that the property of the State of Wisconsin, including or sale of property of minors or other persons under guardianship are taken in any county court judge shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the court, to be chargeable to the estate.

Action on the veto went over for a day. Action was again deferred for a week upon the bill of the House, which was carrying the property of the Milwaukee Exposition from taxation, a substitute for the bill now before the Senate.

Mr. S. S. S., providing for the taxation of vessels on a tonnage basis, originally making the rate 1 cent a ton, was amended by its author, of which the House concurred in, 20 to 12, and passed. The Thomas bill, 10 A., increasing the wolf bounty, was concurred in with half a dozen amendments, the bill being amended as follows:

Wolf cub under 6 months, $3; mature wolf, $5; wildcat or lynx, $2. The bounty is to be paid by the county where the animal is killed. Senator McDonough secured reconsideration, by a vote of 15 to 12, of the vote by which the bill constitutional amendment legislation was passed.

Further action was then postponed. The following bills were passed: Providing for traveling expenses of the tax commission; their clerks to be paid $10,000 a year; authorizing cities to levy a tax for support of public libraries; and to change the terms of the Supreme court.

After killing the Stevens substitute and the Miller bill, the Senate on the evening of the 11th concurred in the bill of the House, which was carrying the property of the Milwaukee Exposition from taxation, a substitute for the bill now before the Senate.

and after another long debate the bill was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 53 to 26. Senator McGillivray's bill relating to the use of bicycles on public streets was passed by the Assembly. Two bills by Senator Jones, Nos. 127 and 128, relating to the management of electric light plants and the collection of water and light rates, were laid over. Senator Wood's bill prescribing a punishment for injuring telegraph and telephone poles or wires gave the Assembly quite a debate. The bill was finally referred to the Judiciary committee.

Mr. La Follette's bill to amend the act of 1897 relating to the taxation of land in farm was ordered to a third reading. The county division bill on the calendar for third reading were quickly and easily disposed of. One proposed to detach certain territory from Marinette county and attach it to Florence county. Mr. McGill said that the bill was killed, which was done. The second, changing the boundary of Lincoln county, was returned to Mr. Whitson.

The Assembly held a short session on the evening of the 11th, but between sessions efforts to save bills from an untimely death and to adjourn in order to hear the debate in the Senate chamber the members accomplished little. Mr. Whitson submitted a resolution providing that the debate upon the bill shall hereafter be confined to ten minutes for the first speech and five minutes for the second, and that no member shall speak more than twice on the same bill. Under the rules the resolution went over. The Assembly killed bill No. 416 A., appropriating $200 for a commission of the railroad laws.

The Assembly on the 12th killed Mr. Cady's bill forbidding the marriage of white persons with negroes. There was a lengthy debate in the course of which the author said his bill had been treated as a joke, whereas his intentions had been serious. The bill was killed by a vote of 58 to 10.

The committee on claims introduced a bill to limit the expense of contested election cases hereafter to $500. The bill was placed on the calendar in its original form. A resolution by Mr. Whitson limiting speeches in debate to ten minutes, brought out quite a discussion, and was adopted, and having been amended so as not to apply to special orders. The osteopaths fought out their battle this morning and called the house to order. The fight was not on osteopathy itself, but upon the McComb bill, known as the medical bill, which was killed by a vote of 23 to 32.

The bill was taken up at noon until the evening of the 15th.

The Hagemaster bill which was passed by the Senate in place of the Stevens bill, on the evening of the 10th and was referred to the committee on privileges and elections. It is a report will be received before the end of the week. Gov. La Follette sent two bills back to the Assembly without his approval. The first was a bill authorizing towns to vote aid in the erection of wagon toll bridges over navigable rivers and the education committee bill, authorizing the school district of Lincoln county to borrow money. Both vetoes were sustained.

The bill authorizing the school district of Lincoln county to borrow money, both vetoes were sustained. The bill authorizing the school district of Lincoln county to borrow money, both vetoes were sustained.

I Followed Mrs. Pinkham Advice and Now I am Well.

A woman is sick—some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds back something, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and this completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it a wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician. This is the reason why hundreds of thousands of women are now in correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can give every symptom, so that when she is ready to advise them she is in possession of more facts from her correspondence with the patient than the physician can possibly obtain through a personal interview.

Following we publish a letter from a woman showing the result of a correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. All such letters are considered absolutely confidential by Mrs. Pinkham, and are never published in any way or manner without the consent in writing of the patient; but hundreds of women are so grateful for the health which Mrs. Pinkham and her medicine have been able to restore to them that they not only consent to publishing their letters, but write asking that this be done in order that other women who suffer may be benefited by their experience.

Mrs. Ella Rice, Chelsea, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with falling and inflammation of the womb. I suffered very much with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and was not able to do anything. What I endured no one knows but those who have suffered as I did. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I doctored with the physicians of this town for three months and grew worse instead of better. My husband and friends wished me to write to you, but I had no faith in patent medicine. At last I became so bad that I concluded to ask your advice. I received an answer at once advising me to take your Vegetable Compound, and I did so. Before I had taken two bottles I was able to walk, and I was well taken five bottles there was no happiness in my life. I was well again. I know that your Vegetable Compound cured me, for I was well and I wish to advise every woman who suffers as I did to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Believe me always grateful for the recovery of my health."—MRS. ELLA RICE, Chelsea, Wis.

$5000 REWARD. Owing to the fact that some skeptical persons have come to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have decided to pay a reward of $5000 to any person who will show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. $3 & $3.50 SHOES UNION MADE.

The real worth of my $3 and $3.50 shoes compared with other makes is $4.00 to $5.00. My $1.50 pair of shoes cannot be equalled at any price. I have been making shoes for 30 years, and I know what I am doing. I have a large stock of shoes in my store, and I will sell you a pair of shoes for $3.00 that will last you for years.

Take no substitute! Insist on having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom. Your dealer should have them, and if he does not, write to me. I will send you a pair of shoes for $3.00 that will last you for years.

AN INCREASE OF DRINKING. Effect of Prosperity—The Great Bill for Beverages.

It appears from official statistics printed by the American Grocer that prosperity has brought with it an increased demand for spirituous and malt liquors, and a very small gain, and in the case of coffee a decrease. Out of $1,228,674.925 spent for beverages, almost 86 per cent is spent for alcoholic stimulants.

For whiskey, 41 per cent, for wine, 20 per cent, for beer, 20 per cent. More coffee gallons was consumed last year than any other sort of drink, amounting to 1,257,983,296 gallons, as against 1,215,000,169 gallons of beer—its greatest competitor.

The United States consumed in 1900 alcoholic and non-alcoholic stimulants to the value of $1,228,674.925, as follows:

Alcoholic drinks	$1,039,563,787
Non-alcoholic stimulants	189,111,138
Coffee	37,812,098
Cocoa	6,000,000

Total 1900 $1,228,674,925
Total 1899 1,146,897,822
Total 1898 1,177,561,866

The above represents a yearly per capita expenditure for beverages of $16.11 for the 76,394,739 inhabitants of the United States, or little less than 4 1/2 cents per day.

If Coffee Poisons You, ruins your digestion, makes you nervous and sallow complexioned, keeps you awake nights and acts against your system generally, try Grain-O, the new food drink. It is made of pure selected grain and is healthful, nourishing and appetizing. It has none of the bad effects of coffee, yet it is just as pleasant to the taste. When properly prepared can't be told from the finest coffee. Costs about 1/4 as much. It is a healthful table drink for the children and adults. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, 15 and 25c.

"Where you found where the would-be murderer left you?"

"I was beset by more than one, and after lying like one dead for hours life but not reason returned. The master of the house where I now am, who was preparing to start on a journey, had risen earlier than usual, and the light which gleamed from the door, which he opened to see what the weather was, must have attracted my attention, for I succeeded in reaching the doorstep, where I fell. He, with the assistance of a servant, carried me into the house. A Jew surgeon was procured, who dressed the wound on my forehead, and another, which he considered more dangerous, in my side. When it became known to them that their neighbor who lived opposite was charged with the crime of murder, and that I must be the person supposed to be murdered, they determined for a while to keep silent on the subject, while, if possible, they increased their efforts for my recovery. This is the second day of the trial, I understand."

"It is."

"I wish to give in my testimony."

"Are you able? Can you endure the necessary excitement and fatigue?"

"My physician has given his consent."

Harleigh was the first witness who was called that afternoon. When he had finished the little he had to say he left the room by a private door, just back of the witness box. Elliston in the meantime had been called to the stand. He had little to add to what Harleigh had said, and when he had withdrawn, a chair was placed where he had stood. Before the spectators had time to express to each other the curiosity and surprise occasioned by this proceeding, Harleigh entered by the same door he went out at with a man leaning on his arm.

The man seemed weak and agitated, and was very pale, an appearance which was heightened by the almost crimson hue of a newly scarified wound on his forehead. At sight of him Falkland started, and a sudden flush overspread his countenance. For a few moments he found it impossible to control his agitation, and his first impulse was to attempt, while the attention of those present was drawn towards Redding, to leave the court house.

"It will look as if I were guilty," he said to himself, after a moment's reflection, and the half-formed intention was therefore abandoned.

Redding having been sworn, said that on the evening of his supposed murder, Gilbert Falkland sent him to Jeduthan, the Jew's, for the purpose of paying one hundred pounds, for which the Jew held Falkland's bond.

"As I was passing a little blind court adjoining the Jew's buildings," he went on to say, "I heard some one say, in a low voice, 'That must be our man, Corlie.' This somewhat startled me, as I thought he might mean me. I quickened my steps, and the next minute I reached the shop door. To my dismay, I found that it was locked. I gave several loud raps, when I was seized by the arm and pulled off the steps. I struggled to free myself, and at the same time cried loudly for help, for I found that I had more than one to contend with. From that time, for more than two weeks, all was a blank to me, except that at one time I have a dim recollection of feeling cold and weak, and of going towards something which I took to be the fire on the hearth of my master's lodgings."

This statement, instead of being invalidated by a strict cross-examination of the witness, and by the testimony of the different members of the family who had acted towards him the part of the good Samaritan, was more fully substantiated, and rendered more consistent.

As Redding steadily persisted in denying that he entered the shop, or any part of the building, so how Falkland's bond came to be in the place where the Jew admitted he had found it, remained a mystery still to be explained. Till it could be, the counsel for the prosecution objected to the release of the prisoner. The assassin, he maintained, might have been employed by him for the purpose of obtaining it. The greed of gain, supposed to be common to his race, justified him in making this assertion.

At this crisis, an honest-looking man, who had entered the court room just as the question of the bond was brought up, and whom Harleigh recognized as Hendrick Dykes, made his way towards the counsel's benches, and requested to be sworn as a witness.

"I think," said he, when his request had been complied with, "that what I have to say may throw some light on the point in question. Late in the evening of the seventeenth day of last month, I started from home with a load of country produce, and arrived in the city before daybreak. I went to the stable where I commonly go, and waking the hostler, had my horses taken care of. As there wasn't room for my wagon under cover, I didn't like to leave it, so I crept under the straw in the back part of the wagon, close to a couple of barrels, and was beginning to be a little drowsy when I heard voices close by. I was wide awake in an instant, for I didn't know but some thieves had strolled that way, and would be helping themselves to some of my cheese. I kept still as a mouse, and listened to what they said.

"It was lucky," said one of them, "that he got the bond, when he went to the old Jew's yesterday morning."

"Why so?" said another voice.

"Don't you see that it will be proof right to the point?" said he who had first spoken.

"Yes, I see now, and I rather think that if Jeduthan had known how it was going to turn out, he would have let it be where it was, instead of picking it up," said the other."

"Was the name of the person mentioned, who was referred to, as obtaining possession of the bond?" was here asked by the counsel for the defense.

Harleigh and Elliston both looked at Falkland when this question was asked, and saw that a look of intense agony swept over his face. The delay was not more than half a minute's duration, but to Falkland, the horror crowded into that half minute was enough to embitter a lifetime.

When the answer of Hendrick came clear and distinct, "It was not," it was well for Falkland that he stood wedged in, among so dense a crowd, as otherwise, so great and sudden was the revelation of his feelings, that he must have fallen.

"Did they call each other by name?" was the next question which was asked of Hendrick.

"I heard one of them call the other by name," was his answer.

"Do you remember what it was?"

"Yes; it was Skellum."

Corkle and his two glib confederates were conveyed from the court house to Newgate, their employer remaining still unsuspected; while the Jew, conducted to his own home by Harleigh and Elliston, found Abi, Alice and Mrs. Selwyn were also there, the same testimony which proved their master's innocence having shown them to be guiltless.

Two days later Falkland visited Corkle in his cell.

"Are you going to help me out of this?" asked the condemned man.

"You are beside yourself. You don't know what you are saying," was the retort.

"I shall know when I proclaim to the world what a double-dyed villain Gil Falkland is."

"You'll think better of what you say when your razor has had time to cool."

"You'll find yourself mistaken. As surely as you live, the world shall know it."

"There is one way to prevent it," and as he spoke he drew forth a poniard which had been concealed about his person.

The quick eye of Corkle caught the gleam of the shining steel aimed at his breast, in season to wrench it from his hand. The next moment Falkland lay at his feet with the poniard sheathed in his heart.

The deep silence of his cell for ten or fifteen minutes remained unbroken, except that now and then a nervous motion of the prisoner caused a faint clasp of his iron fetters. Then the door was unlocked and held a little ajar.

"Come," said the turnkey, "the time is up you were to stay. But how is this, Corlie?" he added, seeing Falkland extended on the floor. "Has your friend gone to sleep?"

"Yes, and won't wake very soon, I'm thinking."

"Who did this?"

"The deed lies between him and me, I suppose," said Corkle, suddenly.

CHAPTER XXI.

In deference to the wishes of Mrs. Elliston, the marriage of Clarence Harleigh and Alice Dale was to take place at her house, and the ceremony was to be performed in the plain, simple manner suited to the religious faith of the sect to which she belonged.

The guests were assembled, and Abi had just finished twining the bridal wreath, with the rich brown tresses of Alice, when there came several quick, sharp raps at the door.

"For the bride," said some one who stood in the shade of the portico, and who quickly turned away after handing something to the servant who had opened the door.

"Here is something for the bride," said he to Mrs. Elliston, who ordered it to be sent to Alice.

Abi undid the cord of blue and white floss bound round it, and removed the envelope.

"How beautiful!" she exclaimed, as a box of pure white ivory, delicately and elaborately carved, was disclosed to view. They bent over it, and read what was written on the slip of paper glued to the cover of the box.

"Sweetest to the sweet," it says, said Abi. "The writer must be some one who knows you. Shall I remove the cover?"

"Yes. We must see what it is."

"A gift delicate and lovely as theasket which contains it."

"See," said Alice; "the morning dew is still sparkling in the heart of these half-blown roses."

"They are just what are needed," said Abi; "for though Mrs. Elliston requested you to wear no jewelry, she cannot object to your wearing these."

They were soon arranged amid the snowy folds of the lace kerchief worn by Alice, which was of a texture so fine and delicate as to make it of a price many times greater than its weight in gold. Word had already been sent them that all was ready.

The Jew, who had been hidden to the wedding, was standing in the doorway of the room contiguous to that where the ceremony was to be performed, and where Harleigh, Elliston and others were awaiting the bride.

"Whence comes this sickening and deathly odor?" exclaimed the Jew, as he stepped back for Alice and Abi to enter.

"What is it?" said Harleigh, coming quickly forward.

"There is a subtle and deadly poison somewhere near," replied the Jew.

"It is nothing but the perfume of these roses," said Abi.

"Where? What roses?" he asked.

"These," and she pointed to those worn by Alice.

"They are poisoned," said he, as he tore them from the bosom of the frightened bride.

Harleigh snatched them from his hand,

and in the almost frantic terror of the moment, threw them from a window.

"How is it, Alice?" said he. "Speak and tell me they haven't had time to do you harm."

"I'm a little faint," she replied, attempting to smile.

"Look!" said Edward Elliston, aside to the Jew. "Her lips are as white as snow."

"Is there nothing which can save her?" exclaimed Harleigh, as he took her in his arms and bore her to a couch.

"I know of an antidote; I have it at home, but it cannot be obtained in time. I fear the hand of death is already upon her," said the Jew.

"If you mean the perfume such as you gave me," said Abi, "I have some here."

And she drew a little gold box from her pocket, in shape resembling the vinaigrette in use at the present day.

"That is it. Take courage. It is still more subtle than the poison, and will soon pervade the whole system," and he held the pleasant though pungent perfume so that Alice could inhale it.

There was a minute of harassing doubt, scarcely relieved by hope. Then her color began to return, and the sluggish, almost frozen pulse to resume its natural, healthy beat. A few moments more and all danger was past. The Jew handed the perfume to Abi.

"Make use of it," said he. "You, too, have been endangered."

They did not see, during all this time, a pale, haggard face pressed against one of the window panes, and the odd, glittering eyes which were watching them. Even if they had, they would not, in their wild terror and intense excitement, have given the circumstance a single thought.

It was not till they knew that the terrible danger was past that some one asked what had become of the poisoned flowers. No one knew.

Harleigh, too much agitated to know what he did when he threw them from the window, had no recollection of the circumstance. The servant who had received the door what had so nearly proved a fatal gift, entering the room as the inquiries were being made, said that he saw Mr. Harleigh throw them from the window.

"They mustn't remain there," said the Jew. "If they do, more than one life may be lost by means of them."

Edward Elliston, having called for a lantern, went in search of them. As he held the light close to the ground its rays fell on some object which, it appeared to him, was a human form, lying under the window next to the one where he was searching for the flowers. Approaching it, he found it was a woman. He called for help, and when he had assisted to carry her into the house, Harleigh and Alice saw that it was Mildred Duces.

"She appears to be dead," said Harleigh. "Is it possible that she found the poisoned flowers?"

"There was no need that she should find them to produce the effect you see," remarked the Jew. "I can perceive that the same deadly effluvia emanates from the flowers entangled in such a manner with the breast-knot she wears, as to make it seem probable that she made an effort to tear them thence, as I detected in these."

In a short time a slight convulsive movement was perceptible, causing a mantle she had on to slip aside, which would have fallen to the floor had not a corner of it been wound round her hand. Harleigh, who stood near, removed the mantle, when it was seen that her hand was closed over the flowers which had been thrown from the window, with so firm and rigid a grasp as to crush them. An attempt to remove them awakened her to a degree of consciousness.

"No—no," she murmured. "They are flowers for the bride. I lost them somehow, but I shall keep them safe now, till I give them into the bride's own hand."

"Can it be that it was she who sent the flowers?" said Edward Elliston.

"She must have been," replied Harleigh. "She recognized his voice."

"Clarence Harleigh," said she, "there was one who stood between you and me, but she is one of the way now. Don't try to find how it came about. It will never come to light. Stay—don't go yet. In a minute I'll be ready to go with you."

As she spoke, with a sudden effort she raised herself from her recumbent posture, threw out her arms in a wild, impassioned manner, as if she wished to prevent some one's departure, fell back and immediately expired.

After what had taken place, all thoughts of the intended wedding were for that evening abandoned. When, in a week afterward, the guests reassembled, it was not alone to witness the bride of Harleigh and Alice, for ere they returned to their own homes, Edward Elliston and Abi Rushon had likewise received the nuptial benediction.

A few months from this time, Harleigh and his youthful bride visited the home of his childhood. It was the evening of their arrival, and the air, keen and frosty without, caused the encrusted snow to sparkle in the beams of the full moon, as if strewn with thousands of diamonds. Was tempered within the ample parlor of the Walworth farm house, to a kind of festive mellowness not easy to describe.

It seemed to Alice that elfin fingers must have been busy with her former guardian's face—here smoothing away some stern and rigid line—and there, slily giving it a little dash of sunshine. It was certain that he had seldom, or never before, so fully given himself up to that social enjoyment which develops the better and the more kindly feelings of our nature, since, by a mistake common to the enthusiasts of his time, he had, in his own mind, confounded even the pure and innocent pleasures of the home circle with those which he considered taint and sinful. But an iceberg cannot resist the constant and genial influences of the sun, and his artificial coldness and austerity had gradually yielded to the gentle and benign influence of her who presided over his household.

"You don't know who Aunt Jane is, do you?" said Ella, who, as in former days, had taken a seat by the side of Alice.

"No, dear," she replied. "Who is she?"

"Auntie Gabriel's wife. You know he taught my brothers and me to call him uncle."

"And we like to, now," said Benjamin. "He don't seem so strange as he used to."

"Gabriel," said Mrs. Walworth, "has been married to the good-natured, laughing Jane Lovering more than a year, and being strong and healthy, she makes nothing of spinning and weaving the fleeces of his flock," which he once, on a certain occasion, alluded to, and of managing a large dairy to his entire satisfaction."

"I guess Aunt Jane's face fills his eye," said Benjamin, "for it is as big and as round as the full moon."

"My son," said his father, reprovingly, though a smile could be seen lurking in his eye, "you mustn't suffer yourself to exaggerate when you make comparisons."

"For my part, I think it is nothing but the simple and candid truth," said Silas Watkins, who, hitherto, had been a silent partaker of the social enjoyment, and who continued to think that it ever there was an angel on earth, it was Alice.

(The end.)

HE RUINED THE FEAST.

Story of How One Jackson Got His Discharge.

"I'm not generally revenged," said Mrs. Blank, "but willingly yesterday would have I have followed Jackson, my waiterman, to the grave."

"Jackson is a good enough man, generally, preternaturally grave, but polite and agile to a degree. I gave him a good recommendation when I sent him away this morning."

"Why did I send him away? Well, that's the story. Yesterday Mr. Blank brought two men friends home to lunch with him. I had never seen either of them before and my pantry was about in the condition of Mother Hubbard's, so, altogether, it was a very serious occasion for me. The cook worked desperately hard, though—she's a good soul, is the cook—and I got out the fruit cake I was saving for Easter and the preserved ginger that's the light of my eyes, and together we fixed up a preestable little feast."

"The piece de resistance of the repast was a dish of creamed turkey, made of the remnants of yesterday's fowl, eked out by being spread upon buttered toast," quotes the Baltimore News. "It looked quite a respectable amount when it was garnished and on the dish, and I cautioned Mr. Blank not to help too lavishly, put my trust in the potato croquettes and lettuce salad and tried to be happy."

"All may yet be well," I murmured to myself, like the hero of a melodrama; but alas! it was not, for the redoubtable Jackson was well to the fore. As soon as I found that he had put on his patent-leather shoes in honor of the company I had forebodings."

"This footwear had once belonged to Mr. Blank, so I knew exactly how slippery it was, but I tried not to care, and to talk of the news of the day in an intelligent manner that would please my husband's school chums."

"The soup course passed off splendidly, though Jackson served it like a juggler tossing plates, and then came the turkey toast. I hope you haven't anticipated my denouncement, but Jackson dropped the entire dish of that dainty on the foot of one of my guests. He was airily trying to lift a vegetable dish with one hand while he presented this with the other when the accident occurred."

"Go and get some more of that errand—entree!" thundered my husband, and send Sarah to remove this horrible delirium."

"There ain't no more turkey, sah, and dat's de truth," said Jackson. Then, "Lemme wipe off your shoe, sah," he said to my guest."

"Of course, we laughed and made merry over the occurrence, and nibbled wafers and cheese and salad and tried to think we were feasting, but I think I know two men who had lunch at a downtown hotel about 3 o'clock that afternoon."

"Jackson? Oh! he's back at his old haunts in a quick-lunch room, and I've no doubt he's succeeding admirably."

The Peach in Babylon.

Nothing is now more universally accepted than that the peach is an improved variety of the almond. The almond has a thin shell around the stone, which splits open and exposes the stone when mature. This outer skin has simply become flesh in the peach, so that all that gives it its specific character. It seems now clear, from investigation in the history of ancient Babylon, that in their gardens—now nearly four thousand years ago—the peach was cultivated as it is now. It must have been many years before this that the peach was improved upon the almond, and this fact goes to show the great antiquity of the fruit. Possibly, gardening in some respects, at least so far as it relates to many of our cultivated fruits, was as far advanced six, or perhaps eight or ten thousand years back as it is to-day. Theonicians, as proved by the records, had in their gardens almonds, apricots, bananas, citrons, grapes, olives, peaches, and pomegranates; and even sugarcane was in extensive cultivation.

Tributes to His Genius.

That very wealthy and fortunate violinist, Senor Sarasate, has received during his career as an artist a set of pearls from Queen Victoria, three rings from the German Emperor Wilhelm I, a blue enamel watch from the Emperor Napoleon III, a diamond ring from Dom Pedro, a portrait etched in gold from the Empress Augusta, and a set of diamonds from Alfonso XII, with which and many other valuable offerings he means to enrich his native town.

The Author of Pinafore.

The late Sir Arthur Sullivan was one of the wealthiest musicians in Europe. From the Savoy operas he drew a princely income, and many of his songs provided him with ever-welcome checks every quarter. As a man of business he had few rivals, and the directors of the Crystal Palace and those of the Savoy Theater knew well his financial ability and his shrewdness.

A little learning is a dangerous thing to be without.

MUST GET OUT OR FIGHT.

Japan Demands that Russia be Ejected from Manchuria.

ULTIMATUM TO CHINA.

Notice Sent to the Emperor, but it is Undoubtedly Meant for St. Petersburg.

London, April 15.—Japan has issued an ultimatum to China that Russia must be ejected from Manchuria, the alternative being that occupation of that province shall become international instead of solely Muscovite.

While directed to Emperor Kwang Hsu, through Li Hung Chang, the ultimatum is undoubtedly meant for St. Petersburg. It is the serving of notice on the Czar that he must abandon Manchuria or fight.

Warning is Made Clear.

The wording of the ultimatum does full credit to the reputation of Marquis Ito as the Bismarck of the Orient. Beneath the flowery language is concealed the mailed fist. First presented as a position, Japan's demand is now couched in words of command.

It is highly significant that Li Hung Chang, ardent special pleader for Russia, should be chosen as the medium for transmitting the ultimatum, and especially so when it is considered that Japan sent her first message to Kwang Hsu through Prince Ching. It is already conjectured here that Earl Li's first message yesterday, after the receipt of the ultimatum, went to the Czar instead of to his own nominal sovereign.

Japan itching for a Fight.

That Japan has determined to precipitate a crisis in the far East is now no longer open to doubt. That, while openly acting in defiance, she has been promised support by other powers, Great Britain among them, is more than probable.

One thing is certain. Russia must now show her hand. She can no longer hide her purposes behind the assertion that she must retain her position in Manchuria to preserve order and protect her interests. International aid in so doing is now offered her. That she will reject it is a foregone conclusion. Therefore a clash seems inevitable.

Japan's assurance to China that all the nations regard the latter as a "friendly power" is interpreted here as an oriental intimation to Russia that she herself is not considered in that category as far as Japan is concerned.

Li Wants Americans to Remain.

Peking, April 15.—Li Hung Chang has applied to Gen. Chaffee to leave behind when he departs Capt. Tolson and a sufficient number of men to police the Chinese city, as the Chinese earnestly desire their retention, fearing that the latter will not be well looked after when control by other foreigners.

An expedition consisting of 5000 German and 3000 French troops will leave Pao Ping Fu tomorrow to drive from the territory several thousand Chinese who refuse to obey the order of Li Hung Chang to keep the boundaries already arranged.

Berlin, April 15.—The foreign office authorized the statement that the Chinese indemnities for the Boxer disturbances and missions, have been fixed as follows: Russia, 300,000,000 marks (about $90,000,000); France, 200,000,000 marks (about $60,000,000); Germany, 200,000,000 marks (about $60,000,000); England, 100,000,000 marks (about $30,000,000); United States, 100,000,000 marks (about $30,000,000).

France will also present claims for the indemnity of the Italian mission.

New York, April 15.—Reports received here as to the amount of indemnity claimed by the powers from China vary to some extent, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. "For instance, France is stated by the Mail correspondent in Peking to be asking for $14,000,000, whereas dispatches from Washington put the amount of France's claim at a much less figure. It is considered more than possible in Peking that the powers may jointly agree to reduce their bills pro rata, particularly if China will guarantee certain commercial concessions. One difficulty in the way is that some of the powers will have honestly spent the sums they demand. Russia may be expected to abate her claim, which is considered quite unjustifiable, considering the relative ease and cheapness with which she was able to mobilize. It should not be forgotten that Russia is making separate demands for territorial and commercial privileges, and besides, the rolling stock and railroad materials which she annexed in vast quantities and applied to the local needs of the Manchurian line, must be worth something."

GOVERNMENT TO CONFESS JUDGMENT.

Famous "Hat Trimming" Cases to be Settled by the Payment of $4,000,000.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 15.—The famous "hat trimming" cases, involving $20,000,000, and which since 1884 have been the subject of bitter legal battle between the government and a number of importers, have at last been settled. It is stated on high authority that a compromise has been effected through which the merchants interested will receive about $4,000,000 from the United States treasury in full settlement of the much larger amount they claim to have been forced to pay in excess of legal duties.

The suits which have engaged the attention of some of the best lawyers of the United States, were brought by Meyer & Dickman, John Adler & Co., John Wanamaker, Henry Tige and other Philadelphia firms.

These cases will, it is said, be called up in the United States district court Tuesday, when judgment will be confessed against the government for the amount agreed upon. In other suits verdicts will be taken in favor of the defendants.

ROBBED ON TRAIN.

Prosecuting Attorney of Menominee Mich., Has Pockets Picked of $210.

Menominee, Mich., April 15.—(Special.)—Prosecuting Attorney W. N. Miles was robbed on a North-Western train yesterday while going from Menominee to Slager, Mich. He was in the smoking car sleeping when his pockets were picked of $210 and valuable papers. The robbers escaped from the train.

TEACHER KISSED PUPILS.

Charged with Showing Too Much Affection for Girls.

Calumet, Mich., April 15.—At the meeting of the school board of Calumet, the resignation of E. L. Heath, principal of the Washington school, was presented and accepted, to take effect at once. Heath was charged with kissing some of his girl pupils.

Tea-Raising in South Carolina.

During the past few days a company has been organized under the laws of South Carolina for the purpose of making the experiment of raising tea in that state, and a tract of 6000 acres has been purchased near Charleston on which to begin the industry this season.

Only about 1000 acres will be put immediately under cultivation, but the remainder will be enriched, ready for planting by next spring. Tea requires an exceedingly rich soil, but there seems to be no reason to doubt that the conditions necessary to produce an excellent quality of the leaf can be supplied by proper attention.

If the experiment proves successful, the company will raise as much as 200,000 pounds of tea per annum, and so confident are they of satisfactory results that they are already negotiating for the purchase of additional lands—Atlanta Constitution.

English Business Methods.

New Zealand wanted some locomotives, and ordered them in England of an English firm. The firm said it would be happy to supply them of a certain pattern and a certain weight. The railway authorities thereupon pointed out that the weight was too much for the bridges, which were already constructed. The firm said that that was very sorry, and recommended that the bridges should be rebuilt. Such absolute folly on the part of a business firm is almost incredible, yet Mr. Rivers vouches for the truth of the story.—Financial Times.

A Malicious Horse.

A story is going the rounds up at Merrill about Lloyd King, who is well known in this city. It seems that one evening last week Mr. King took a trip out in the country about three miles to make a short call on a gentleman friend, who by the way is the possessor of a pretty daughter. Lloyd must have staid longer than he expected to for when he came to start for the city there was no one up but the young lady, and after he had bid her a hasty farewell he went out to untie his horse from the front fence. His dismount may be imagined when he found both horse and buggy missing. He went back to the house and the young lady procured a lantern and the two started on a still hunt after the missing rig. After a careful search in the neighborhood, however, nothing answering to the description of the missing animal could be found so the two young people wended their way back to the paternal domicile and arousing the old man asked his advice concerning the matter. He was evidently of wider experience than the young folks and in the course of time found the animal alongside the road about a mile from the house. Lloyd didn't tell his friends anything about the experience, as one of our citizens who was up to Merrill heard about the matter. It is said that Mr. King now carries a logging chain with which to tie the brute when he makes a trip into the country.

No doubt the "hello girls" throughout the land will read the following paragraph with considerable apprehension: An invention which threatens to do away almost entirely with the telephone girl and to make each subscriber his own "central" has been designed by an electrician in the Providence Electric Co., of Providence, R. I. Subscribers will be connected by means of miniature switchboards and plugs. The lines will be numbered and each subscriber may call anyone he pleases without connecting with central. When long distance connection is required, however, it will still be necessary to call a central office as at present. Every subscriber is supplied with an instrument consisting of a battery, transmitter, receiver, call bell and movable dial with decimal figures. This dial revolves around a circular pivot and may be brought opposite any figure desired. A toothed wheel is worked by this dial and connects with the battery, breaking the circuit corresponding to the figure indicated.

So great is the influence of a sweet minded woman on those around her that it is almost boundless. It is to her that friends come in season and out of season for help and comfort, one soothing touch of her kindly hand works wonders in the feverish child, a few words fall from her lips in the ear of a sorrow stricken sister do much to raise the load of grief that is bowing its victims down to the dust in anguish. The husband comes home worn out with the pressure of business and feeling terrible with the world in general, but when he enters the cozy sitting room and sees the blize of fire, and meets his wife's smiling face, he succumbs in a moment to the soothing influence which acts as the balm of Gilead to his wounded spirits that are weighed with the stern realities of life. The rough schoolboy flies into a rage from the taunts of his companion to find solace in his mother's smile, the little one, full of grief for its large trouble, finds a haven of rest in its mother's breast. And so one might go on with instance after instance of the influence that a sweet minded woman has in the social life with which she is connected.—Selected.

And now comes the "Camels," a new club to oppose the famous Buffalos on much the same lines. The "Camels" differ from the Buffalos principally by one of the conditions of membership being to "swear off" from intoxicants. The ladies swear from the gentlemen members. The grip of the new club is a squeeze of the right hand twice and two winks of the right eye as the countersign. The pass word is, "I have crossed the Sahara" desert.

The people round about Kansas City have evidently had enough of Mrs. Carrie Nation and her tactics. One day recently she was fined $500 and given six hours to leave the city. She left. It is claimed that the lady has cleaned up the neat little sum of $15,000 out of her crusade against the liquor traffic and in making this amount she destroyed a total of $500,000 worth of property. Not a very good investment, everything considered. In addition to this, however, she has received about $1,000,000 worth of free advertising, which should be taken into account.

Assemblyman Cady's bill to prohibit the marriage of negroes and white persons was rejected by a vote of 33 to 59, nearly two to one, which would indicate that the measure was not a very popular one. A great many of the assemblymen looked on the intended law as a joke. Why they should have taken this attitude, however, can hardly be imagined, as a number of other states have similar laws, and have had them for years, and the inhabitants seem to be satisfied with them, inasmuch as they are left standing without any talk of being repealed. Taken altogether the bill had more merit than many that were more seriously considered.

Several cities up the line have been having "trip around the world" entertainments that have proven quite efficacious as a means of inducing the public to cough up their cash for some enterprise where other means had failed to "raise the wind." The entertainments are held during the afternoon and evening and consist in the representation of different countries by young ladies and others properly costumed. When properly conducted they are quite interesting and take on some of the features of a carnival on a small scale. Two or three hundred dollars generally reward the ladies for their labors.

It is said that a little girl who didn't go to Sunday school very much and whose ideas of Heaven and its inhabitants were a trifle vague, asked her mother to tell what an angel is. "An angel, my dear child," was the answer, "is a beautiful young girl with the light of stars in her eyes and the bloom of youth upon her cheeks, who flies." "But mamma," persisted the child, who doubted the flying part of the definition, "why does papa call his type-writer an angel?" "Because," replied her mother with grim determination in her voice, "your papa's blonde type-writer will fly as soon as I can get down to the office."

A special meeting of the county board has been called for May 7th.

A party consisting of A. M. Muir, G. W. Baker, E. B. Rossier and Will Martin went to Friendship on Sunday and indulged in a couple of days trout fishing, returning Tuesday evening. Another load consisting of Garry Mason, Jesse Hopgood, F. P. Daly and Will Reeves went down the same day and spent a couple of days after the frisky trout. They all report that the catch proved lighter than on previous occasions. One reason for this was that there was an unusual number of fisherman on the ground, there being several wagon loads of anglers from other places, as well as a sprinkling of farmers from the country. Taken altogether the fishermen intimated that the number and size of fish caught hardly paid for the long ride and inconvenience attendant on such a trip.

Porto Rico persistently refuses to be benevolently assimilated, although the islanders have been assured by the present administration that they are better off now than they ever were and consequently happy. They have even gone so far as to send a delegate to the laboring classes, a champion kicker by the name of Iglesias, who states that the lower classes are worse off than they have ever been before. That's just the way with some people. They'd kick if they were going to be hanged. Here we have knocked off the fetters of the overbearing Dons, benevolently assimilated them, saddled them with all the restrictions of a grand and glorious free country, without putting them to any of the worry and anxiety of conducting their own government, and still they are not satisfied.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council met in its last session, Mayor Goggins presiding. Aldermen present Wood, Lutz, Reiland, Kruger, Pratt, Bundy, Otto, Anthofer, Kellogg, Schuabel, Hill and Boles. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. The street committee reported on the petition of E. Pfeiffer and others asking the laying of a sewer and water pipes in 5th ward along Maple street to certain points recommending that the prayer of the petitioners be granted, the cost thereof addition to the sums subscribed to be paid by the sewer district in which located. Report adopted.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of the Consolidated Water Power company made the following report: Your committee appointed to consider and report on the petition of the Consolidated Water Power company, asking permit from said city to build its dam at such point or place in said city as it may select and according to the plans and specifications of its engineers, beg leave to report and commend the passage by this council of the following resolutions:

RESOLVED that the Consolidated Water Power company be, and hereby is, authorized to construct its dam and other works in the development of the water power in the city of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin, at such point or place as it may select and according to the plans and specifications of its engineers without claim of damage or other consideration from said city, except only that due precaution for the exercise by said company and property of said city and for the preservation of the public health, none of which such claims or rights are hereby surrendered or released by said city. And provided further that there be granted to said city by said company, its successors and assigns, the perpetual right to enter upon the lands of said company and erect and construct and keep in repair thereon and thereon all necessary drains, sewers and water-pipes of said city, doing no unnecessary damage to said lands and not interfering with or injuring said company's works and improvements. And provided further that said company accept this resolution in writing, together with all its provisions and conditions filed with the clerk of said city within ten (10) days from this date.

Dated this 16th day of April, A. D. 1901.

N. REILAND,
M. S. PRATT,
Committee.

Report and resolution adopted. City attorney made a report on the bill of A. L. Fontaine for printing of $100.45 recommending that same be allowed at $95.45 the item of $5 for official ballots being disallowed. Conway of Grand Rapids was here to attend the firemen's ball last Friday night. Ex-Mayor E. R. Goggins of Grand Rapids circulated among his numerous friends here last Friday.

Mrs. Emil P. Schmitt returned on Tuesday of last week from Medford where she had gone to visit her parents. She had received word that her father, Adam Loudenglos, was to start soon for Seattle and she went to Medford to see him but he had left the city the day before. While she was still at the parental home word was received that Mr. Loudenglos was dead, having died at Seattle the day after his arrival there. He had been taken violently ill on the train when only a short distance from St. Paul and continued to get worse until he passed away. He was accompanied on the trip by his youngest son. The cause of death was Lagrip and congestion of the lungs.

High School Notes.
An entertainment will be given in the school house next Thursday evening for the benefit of athletics in the high school.

There hasn't been anyone to school yet that showed any signs of the mumps but there are many absences on account of them.

There are but very few girls in the high school that interest themselves in athletics but it will probably be more interesting after Saturday.

This week has been devoted to examinations, which are the last before the finals. Just six weeks more, or thirty days, or 360 hours.

Athletic work is being pushed hard now. The boys who are trying to make the team have been getting out every afternoon after school this week and doing some excellent teaming.

Saturday afternoon there will be a field-meet held at the fair grounds. Competition will lie between the Sophomores and Seniors vs. Freshmen and Juniors. There will be all kinds of races: 100 yards, 220, quarter mile, half mile, one mile pole vaulting high jump, broad jump, throwing hammer and discus and putting the shot, bicycle and lastly a base ball game. Everybody come and encourage the boys.

The Juniors have made all arrangements for their swell prom on May 3. Invitations have been given out and a good time promised to those who enjoy the dance.

The Physics class begin the subject of electricity and magnetism Monday, having just finished heat.

Society and Club Notices.
The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church of west side will meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. A. C. Bennett.

An exchange says:—"The hog is the mortgage hater, the sheep the farm fertilizer, the cow the barn builder and the hen the grocery bill payer. This quartet, with a man and woman, not afraid of work in caring for them, will insure prosperity on any farm."

—Prof. W. E. Allen of the Stevens Point Business College received during the last month twenty-five calls for stenographers and bookkeepers. A number of these he was unable to supply as the calls were for young men who had a knowledge of book-keeping and stenography but all such graduates of the Stevens Point Business College were previously employed.

The big whistle on the electric light plant brought out a big crowd about 10:30 Monday evening by sounding an alarm of fire. Investigation proved that it was only a blaze in the pile of wood refuse from the hub factory. The west side fire company turned out and put out the blaze in short order.

—Wall Paper bargains at Daly's.

Herman Smith of Arpin has purchased the Dugas residence on the east side, consideration $1500, and will occupy it with his family. —The finest line of iron beds in artistic colors ever brought to this city, now on display at the leading furniture store of Geo. W. Baker's. Call and examine them and get the very low prices at which they are going.

During the past week an order has been issued by the St. Paul officials by which a large number of the section men of this division have been discharged and Italians substituted in their place. It seems that the order was sweeping and without exception, the men being fired without cause or reason. The company, so far as can be learned, has not volunteered any reason for the action. It is stated that the people at Wausau have rebelled against the order and as a consequence are doing their business over the Northwestern road, even though the change causes them in some instances considerable inconvenience.

—$5.00 will buy a bicycle at Daly's Bicycle store.

If You Want to Ride

A first-class, high grade bicycle, one that you can depend on, a mount that you can be proud of, come and see our Bicycles before you make your purchase.

We have the celebrated Pierce Bicycles "Tried and True," all models, from a rigid frame chain wheel to a cushion frame chainless, with coaster brake.

They are acknowledged to be the best bicycles made. They are fitted with the finest roller bearings, the Morse roller chain and G. & J. clincher tires.

We also sell the RACYCLE, narrow tread, with absolutely dust-proof bearings, and sprocket wheel between bearings, instead of on the outside, giving an advantage of 27 1/2 per cent in propelling power. They have an oil magazine in crank hanger which supplies oil to bearings as needed, requiring no oiling during entire season. Fitted with G. & J. tires.

Then we have the Rambler, Regal, Eldredge, Andrae and Clipper Bicycles—all strictly high grade at low prices.

Our $25 Bicycles beat the record for value

We sell for CASH and on EASY PAYMENT PLAN. We want you to come and see them whether you intend to buy or not, and cordially invite you to call.

Second-hand Bicycles, From $5.00 Up.

Come and ride the cushion-frame Pierce. Everybody invited to try it. Don't forget the place.

CRANMOOR.

The Henry Zirbel family whose farm lies four miles east of Cranmoor, are erecting a new house on the ground where the old house and all its contents were consumed by fire one windy night last winter. Their immediate neighbors recently made a bee and donated a good day's work on the building. "Hard land" as we term Mr. Zirbel's locality is a little out of our province, but the family is well known to all our people and we are naturally interested in our hard land as well as marsh land neighbors.

A well selected program was finely rendered at the school house last Sabbath afternoon by the pupils of Miss Dorothy Fitch's Sunday school. The little folks are certainly interested and showed careful training. The entertainment was worthy the attendance of the entire neighborhood.

James Gaynor has been up town the greater part of the week supervising the construction of a new cranberry machine. The device we believe is one of his own invention and we trust will prove as satisfactory as some others from the same source.

We noticed a quantity of household goods at the station platform last Monday that had come up from Mather for our new neighbors the Grimshaws. Mr. Grimshaw is foreman at the J. B. Arpin marsh and is domiciled at one of the Arpin houses.

With a host of other friends we give thanks for the return home from the Oshkosh hospital, of Miss Rose McCamley, and rejoice that she comes with every prospect of restored health.

A washout six feet deep and twenty feet long makes quite a serious break in one of the dunes on Morgan Potters marsh. Mr. Potter came down today to repair the damage.

Harry and Harriet Whittlesey met their brother Charles at Nekoosa last Saturday and with other congenial spirits enjoyed the party of the evening.

Mrs. A. C. Otto of Grand Rapids has been visiting at the home of her brother Robert Skeel, coming down Saturday evening with Mr. Kruger.

Miss Maud Griffith was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rezin Sunday last. Mrs. Thomas Rezin was a caller also at the same house.

Miss Dorothy Fitch is at home again after a visit of several weeks with her many friends at Wausau.

The return of Thomas McGovern from Rochester, Minn., is daily expected.

Miss Anna Granger visited her home in Grand Rapids Saturday and Sunday.

Timothy Foley drove to Nekoosa and other points early in the day Monday.

Mrs. S. N. Whittlesey was a business caller at Nekoosa Monday morning.

Mr. Edward Kruger transacted business at the county seat Saturday.

PORT EDWARDS.

Sherman Cleveland has moved his household goods from their old home to the house formerly occupied by E. C. Burrows. This makes it handier for Miss Cleveland for her school work.

Anna Munding, Mary Leverance, Clara Wendland and Rosie Gahler are attending the German school in your city. They go up on the train every morning and back at night.

Geo. B. Brazeau and Henry Martin will soon start to build new homes in our city. Mr. Martin will rent his farm and move here so as to be nearer his work at the mill.

Stephen Brazeau Sr., went to Grand Rapids Wednesday and will stay with Mrs. Chas. Quin until his son Edward is settled at Nekoosa.

Steve Rantz the millwright expects to move his family here soon and will occupy the house vacated by J. E. Brazeau.

O. W. Dodge's new driving horse arrived last Saturday. Mr. Dodge is well satisfied with his purchase.

Miss Viola Garrison of your city spent a few days in our city the guest of her brother Emile.

W. A. Brazeau is breaking ground for his new home which he is going to build near the church.

Mrs. Herbert Lapham is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. S. Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thomas of Nekoosa visited friends here last Saturday evening.

About 15 of our young people attended the dance at Nekoosa last Saturday evening.

A. M. Pride the Tomahawk paper-mill man visited our paper mills last Saturday.

J. E. Brazeau moved his family to Nekoosa Thursday.

Landlord Deyo spent Wednesday at Mosinee looking for a cook for his hotel.

SHERRY.

Mr. Irivson and family arrived Tuesday and will reside for sometime on the old Willard's farm. Mr. Irivson has purchased a section of land of Benson and Anderson.

Young Mr. Irivson had the misfortune of a painful accident of being shot in the toe by an accidental discharge of his gun.

Mrs. W. J. Trussel and granddaughter Pearl will return home this week from a pleasant visit with relatives at Minnesota.

Geo. Martin, real estate agent, came here Wednesday with several men looking for investments in land.

Tim O'Connell is delivering nursery stock to the farmers this week.

The Becker Mfg. Co. shipped two carloads of lumber this week.

Our creamery at this place will run daily until further notice.

—We have just received a complete stock of garden and field seeds from Northrup, King & Co. All northern grown and warranted. Centralia Hardware Co.

GENERAL COUNTY.

There is no question now that Marshfield has the largest and best herd of shorthorns in the United States, including more blooded Scotch cattle, which are conceded to be the choicest grade on the market anywhere. C. E. Blodgett has just returned from Canada where he purchased forty-six head at a cost of $15,000, making the total number of shorthorns now owned by him on his celebrated farm southwest of the city more than two hundred. He bought one well known breeder's entire herd of thirty-six head for $12,000 and the balance he selected from other stock farms in Canada. The shipment will arrive here about the 26th inst. in three cars, some little time being required in transferring them over the Canadian border and registering in the United States. The expense of this including freight charges, etc., will figure up close to a thousand dollars. Through the Blodgett farm Marshfield has become known to the country over as a stock center of no secondary importance.

Mr. Blodgett states that he will hold a big stock sale here in October which will attract buyers from Maine to California and fill the city with visitors. He will also enter seventeen head at the sale to be held in Madison on May 14th by the Wisconsin Breeders' association.—Marshfield News.

Some of the farmers in the county have been feeding potatoes to their stock since the drop in prices. They claim that this is more profitable than hauling them any distance to market with the tubers bringing only 18 cents a bushel. Besides the low price they are obliged to be of the very best in quality which is another factor that detracts from the profit.

Last Friday H. F. White, sporting editor of the Chicago Tribune, purchased Dr. H. A. Lathrop's four year old filly, Chocolate, for $1,000, the highest price ever paid for a colt raised in Wood county.—Marshfield News.

Mrs. Julia Marx of the town of Vesper died on Wednesday, after an illness extending over several months. Deceased was 45 years old and leaves a husband and several children to mourn her loss.

Charles Miller of Vesper has sold his farm of ninety-six acres to Marshfield parties. Mr. Miller will probably buy another tract of land in this vicinity and continue the vocation of farming.

The sawmill at Vesper will commence operations this week. There are about 400,000 feet of logs on hand which are owned by E. W. Ring of Pittsville.

BIRON.

F. M. Stearns went to Star Lake Monday to take charge of the sawmill at Salsick & Wilson.

James Demars died Thursday morning at 3 a. m., after a lingering illness of almost two years.

A few of the boys attended the dance at Nekoosa Saturday night last and report a fine time.

Aug. Kempfert, accompanied by his son Harry, went to Appleton Tuesday on business.

Miss Anna Allen of Oshkosh is visiting with her aunt, Mrs. F. M. Stearns.

Mrs. Alpine spent the later part of this week with friends at Nekoosa.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses were granted during the past week:

Joseph L. Hennes to Julia Alma Bevel, both of Marshfield.

Joseph Chappie, Nekoosa, to Volare Joreginske, town of Grand Rapids.

Frank C. Meitner to Christina Schutzen, both of Richfield.

Frank E. Smith to Minnie McBurney, Pittville.

Jacob E. Jackson to Lorinda M. Morrison, both of Marshfield.

Got Six Months.

A. C. Loucks, who was arrested at Marshfield for wife beating, had his trial in that city Friday and was fined $100 or given six months in the county jail. In default of payment he will serve out the term.
